WIND OF SIAM LOSSES POWERS IN REVOLT

MARTIAL LAW IN GERMANY IS HITLER DEMAND

Nazi Leader Calls on Government to Suppress Communists Throughout Republic Following Clashes in Which National Socialists Killed; "Five Minutes to Twelve," He Says

Canadian Press and Associated Press Dispatches

Munich, Bavaria, June 24.—Adolph Hitler, in a public declaration issued from Nazi headquarters to-day demanded establishment of martial law throughout Germany as a result of continuing political clashes which this week have cost ten lives.

Furthermore, he demanded the Communist Party be suppressed and the police, especially those in Prussia, be purged of Socialist and Centrist members.

"The hour is at hand," he warned. "It is five minutes before twelve."

READY TO CLEAR STREETS

Berlin, June 24.—Warning that unless police checked activities of Communists "we will give the command to clear the streets ourselves," was given in a public address by Joseph Goebbels, aide to Adolph Hitler, here yesterday evening. This declaration followed a day of clashes between Hitler's National Socialist and Communist forces throughout Germany in which four persons were killed.

A National Socialist was killed at Dortmund, and at Duisburg, and Strasbourg police men were killed. A Hamburg policeman succumbed to injuries received several days ago.

Emund Heine, National Socialist member of the Reichstag, in an address at Breslau, said that "if police do not support us, we will drive them to the wall. In one month we will be the police and then no one else will march."

Squads of Berlin police patrolled the Moabit, Wedding and Prenzlauer districts, where they used clubs and fire hoses to disperse crowds of Communist demonstrators and Hitlerites.

Several persons were wounded by bullets and sixty were arrested in a fight last night near the centre of the city.

NINETY GIRLS IN FIGHT IN HOME

Associated Press

Detroit, June 24.—Police reserves were summoned to the juvenile detention home here to-day to quell a disorder in which ninety girls between fourteen and seventeen years old fought for more than fifteen minutes in the second floor dining-room of the home.

The girls fought with table knives, dishes and other implements. Dresses were torn, hair was pulled and faces were scratched. The first policeman who entered the dining-room also came out with scratches and bruises.

The disorder apparently started over dissatisfaction with discipline.

Conference Success Plans Urged By King

Liberal Leader Says Bennett Must Have Policy Different From That of 1930 If Ottawa Empire Assembly to Avoid Failure

Sussex, N.B., June 24.—The forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa is doomed to failure if the Conservative administration of this country maintains the policy uttered by Premier Bennett at the Imperial Conference in London two years ago, says Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party of Canada.

"If the conference is not to be a failure it must now be apparent Mr. Bennett will have to abandon altogether the policy he enunciated at the conference of 1930," said the opposition leader at a largely attended meeting held here yesterday evening in support of the candidacy of Donald V. White of Sussex, Liberal, in the by-election to be held in the constituency of Royal next Monday.

"Just imagine asserting the Canadian position is to be that of adding 10 per cent to duties now existing against foreign countries. Would Britain listen for a moment to further humbug of that kind?"

CITY STUDENT WINS HONORS

Miss Idele Louise Wilson Awarded Laurel By Royal Empire Society

Gained Many Academic Honors in City and Vancouver During Studies

MISS IDELE WILSON

Miss Idele Louise Wilson, 421 Vancouver Street, brilliant student and graduate of Victoria High School, Victoria College and the University of British Columbia, has added to her long list of academic laurels the second place award from the Imperial Studies Committee of the Imperial Society of London for the Walter Fremden Lord prize in Imperial history. It was learned here to-day.

She gained the prize in competition with graduates of not more than three years standing of British Universities throughout the Empire for her 1931 thesis "Last Years of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance," a study on dominion influence on foreign policy.

First honors went to a graduate of Dalhousie on research in Nova Scotia history.

Miss Wilson's B.A. thesis is a splendid piece of work on the race problem in British East Africa. She won the American Antiquarian Fellowship for 1932 at Clark University after a splendid career in academic work in British Columbia.

Matriculating with high standing at Victoria High School in 1927, Miss Wilson achieved outstanding honors at Victoria College where she ranked first in both freshman and sophomore work in history and in 1931 capped her achievements at that institution by winning the gold medal for history and a fellowship at Clark University.

Special to The Times

Courtenay, June 24.—Savagely attacked by a Jersey bull on his farm near here, K. Kobayakawa, a Japanese farmer long resident in the district, last week narrowly escaped being gored to death.

The man, although seriously hurt, succeeded in escaping behind a barbed wire fence, the enraged animal desperately trying to break through to complete its gory escapade.

Dr. Millard was called to attend the injured man. The bull charged the taxi in which the doctor had reached the scene. In driving with lowered horns at the car the animal charged into a maple tree.

The injured farmer's son ended the affair when he arrived with a 30-30 rifle and shot the infuriated animal as it was charging in his direction.

Mr. Kobayakawa was taken to hospital in an unconscious state, but is now recovering.

SHIP WORKER SAVES YOUTH

F. Crowther Rescued From Inner Harbor By J. Jamieson of C.P.R. Vessel

Youth Taken to Hospital in Critical Condition

Prompt action by John M. Jamieson, 221 Superior Street, prevented a drowning tragedy in the Inner Harbor this morning when Fred Crowther, 423 Boleyn Road, fell from the C.P.R. wharf into the deep water near the ship moorings.

Mr. Crowther was exhausted when pulled from the water by Mr. Jamieson and James Adams, both of whom are deckhands on the steamer Princess Elizabeth. He was taken to the Jubilee Hospital in a critical condition, but was reported recovering this afternoon.

Eye-witnesses told police that Crowther was sitting on his bicycle at the end of the wharf when he overbalanced and plunged into the sea. Weighed down by his clothing he submerged and after coming up went down again.

Mr. Jamieson, from the rail of the ship, witnessed the mishap. Without a second's delay he plunged over the ship's side, not stopping to take off his clothing. He reached the drowning man as he was going down again. Slowly he pulled him to safety and Mr. Jamieson assisted in dragging both from the water.

Although Mr. Crowther was conscious when taken out, he was suffering from shock. The police patrol responded with a pump, but it was not necessary and Mr. Crowther was taken to the hospital for attention.

Lausanne Delegates Stated Making Gains

Getting Along Well, Says German Chancellor After Talk on Finances With French Premier

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer
Lausanne, Switzerland, June 24.—The French and German to-day came to grips with the basic problem of the Lausanne reparations conference.

In the hilltop hotel where the French headquarters is installed, Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany first met Premier Edouard Herriot alone. Half an hour later other German delegates appeared and the two delegations began their faithful conference, dealing on the ultimate capacity of Germany to pay reparations.

In the passageways crowds of newspapermen from all nations eagerly awaited some glimmering of the outcome.

BELGIAN SUGGESTIONS

And the Belgians improved the shining hour by distributing among the conference delegations still another scheme for the regeneration of Central Europe.

This new scheme contemplates: (1) Reorganization of German public utility enterprises as a means of assuring the stability of the German monetary system.

(2) The creation of an international credit organization to assist Central and Eastern Europe.

(3) A review of the customs systems with a view to mutual tariff reductions.

The Belgians are continuing to exchange views with the delegations on this plan, which, in their view, would get around the inability of Germany to fulfill the reparations schedule.

The Franco-German conversations were adjourned this afternoon after nearly three hours, to be resumed early this evening.

IN GOOD SPIRITS

Chancellor von Papen and Herriot left the conference arm in arm and in the best of spirits.

"How is the conference going?" Chancellor von Papen was asked.

"Very well," he replied. "We worked well."

This Man Changed History But Was Only Camel Driver

Arithmetic, algebra, sugar and cotton came from the Saracen civilization, brought into Europe in the Middle Ages by the returning Crusaders. The cause of the crusading venture was the Moslem religion and the hold of its adherents on the parts of Palestine considered as holy by the western Christians.

This month a large part of the world has been celebrating the 1300th anniversary of the death of the founder of the powerful and advanced Moslem religion—Mohammed. He was only a poor camel driver, but he changed the history of the world, with one-eighth of humanity now embracing his religion, which has spread over half of the world.

As a feature of the Saturday Magazine Section to-morrow The Times will publish the first of a series of articles on "The great Mohammed."

LOSING JOBS TO OUTSIDERS

Foreigners Abusing Special Work Privilege, Ex-Service Men Claim

Veterans Abroad Also Agitated Over Difficulties in Returning

Determination to use every pressure upon the Department of Immigration to prevent the entry into Canada of foreigners sent to perform specified work which it is claimed citizens are able to perform, was decided upon at the meeting of the Victoria and District Council of the Canadian Legion held at Sooke yesterday.

While credit was given to the department for turning back many men who endeavored to enter to perform special tasks for which an experienced resident of the country was not available, it was claimed there were instances where foreigners had come to ordinary jobs which residents of Canada were able to perform. Artisans, pile drivers and motor-mechanics were mentioned in this connection.

The returned men's council has also been advised that Canadian veterans in the United States are agitated over certain restrictions in the way of returning to Canada, Canada, they say, is not exhibiting the grateful attitude to some of these men to which they claim they are entitled when they are refused readmittance to the country.

PEDESTRIANS TO BE TABBED

Markers Will Count Traffic For Assessor To-morrow in City

The annual traffic count, taken each year by the city assessor's department as a guide to property values in the business area, will be recorded to-morrow, George Okell, the assessor, announced this morning.

Forty men, with tally machines, will take their posts at strategic points during two different periods of the day to record the flow of pedestrian traffic. The counts will be taken from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 4 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The various counting points include all important intersections in the business area as well as several between block posts.

It is not expected the count this year will show any great shift of traffic from 1931 when the busiest corner in the city was at the southwest of the intersection of View and Douglas Streets. Yates and Douglas Streets shows the heaviest morning count as a rule and View and Douglas in the afternoon.

The results of the count are of interest in many ways and constitute an accurate pendulum of the traffic swing from year to year. Every effort is made by the department to take the count each June under conditions as much the same as possible so that not only the relative value of different locations can be gauged but also the increase or decrease of pedestrian traffic as the years go by can be fixed.

SIAM KING IS KNOWN HERE

Victorians Saw Him and Queen Half-year Before Revolution at Bangkok

Victorians well remember King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni of Siam, who twice visited this city last year. The King spent part of the summer of 1931 in New York, where he went to have a serious operation on his eyes. They arrived at Victoria from the Orient aboard the liner by the Empress of Japan in April, and sailed from this port September 12 aboard the liner Empress of Canada on their return to their home country. While here on their return trip they spent several days at the Empress Hotel, and made several shopping tours of the city. The King taking back linens and dishes and other household goods to equip the Royal Palace in Bangkok.

The King and Queen were widely entertained during their stay in Victoria. They were the guests at a formal dinner at Government House, and were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart at "Benvenuto." Early this year Mr. and Mrs. Butchart and their daughter, Mrs. Harry Ross, went to Siam, where they were guests of the King and Queen.

The destroyer Skeena of the Esquimalt Naval Station, carried the King and Queen and the members of their entourage across the Gulf from Vancouver to the island last September.

Victorians showed interest in the King and Queen, gathering in crowds around the shops to see them enter and return to their cars. The Queen, an attractive young woman, appeared in the latest Paris fashions. The King is remembered as a shy little man, who seemed rather embarrassed by the crowds.

The naval chiefs sent a warship to Huahin, where King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni were spending a holiday. The leader of that expedition was ordered to bring the monarch and his consort back to Bangkok.

The mass of the people apparently took no part in the movement and in the main the city was quiet.

The single casualty, it was said, was the chief of staff of the army, who was shot down by his own men when he resisted arrest.

Ottawa Explanation Surprises Veterans

Ex-Soldiers Protest Jobs Being Distributed Through Political Agency

Employment Bureau in Victoria Too Far Away, Says Deputy Minister

Because Victoria is twenty-five miles from the job it is not convenient to register at the employment bureau here, applicants for jobs at Pier Island, where preparations are being made for housing Doukhobors sentenced to three-year prison terms, is the information that has been received by the Victoria and District Council to the Canadian Legion.

A telegram to this effect was sent to the returned men's council by J. B. Hunter, Deputy Minister of Public Works at Ottawa, in response to a protest from the organization against the jobs being distributed through political channels instead of through the government's own labor bureau.

Derivative comments greeted the reading of the telegram at a meeting of the council held yesterday evening at Sooke.

Speakers voiced amazement at the telegram pointing out that applicants for work now had to report to the political office within half a dozen blocks of the labor bureau. Comments were made on the telegram from the standpoint of the Deputy Minister's lack of knowledge of the geography of Vancouver Island, or the apparent weakness of his explanation why Victorians were barred from jobs. Speakers expressed the opinion that to name only men in the federal constituency in which the work is being done would be reasonable if the jobs were being done out of allocations for relief purposes. It was, however, for ordinary public work undertaken by the government and applications should be open from any man seeking employment.

Following representations made by the veterans' organization to Ottawa an assurance has been received that 25 per cent of the men employed will be ex-soldiers.

Last of Absolute Monarchies Passes in Sudden Revolution Staged By Army and Navy; Army Chief of Staff Only Man Killed

KING IS BROUGHT BACK FROM HOLIDAY

Canadian Press and Associated Press Dispatches

Bangkok, Siam, June 24.—A constitutional monarchy was established in Siam to-day after a sudden but brief revolution in which only one man was killed.

The army and navy rebelled without warning and the city was taken completely by surprise as mutinous troops poured into the streets afoot and in military tanks. A number of them had machine guns.

The rebels invaded the palace and captured several members of the royal family, a number of cabinet ministers and other high government officials, whom they imprisoned in the building.

The naval chiefs sent a warship to Huahin, where King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Barni were spending a holiday. The leader of that expedition was ordered to bring the monarch and his consort back to Bangkok.

FIRE DESTROYS ISLAND GARAGE

Corfield Garage at Courtenay Is Guttered By Midnight Blaze

Building and Equipment Valued at $5,000, Partly Covered By Insurance

Special to The Times
Courtenay, June 24.—Fire gutted the Corfield garage within a few minutes on the Union Bay Road shortly before midnight last night. The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000. The garage was tenanted by Tom Simms, son of the mayor of Courtenay, who had only taken over the building about the middle of April. Mr. Simms had nearly completed alterations costing about $800, when the fire destroyed the garage and its contents. Mr. Simms had only about $300 insurance.

A May of Nanaimo had a car stored there and his loss is estimated at about $400. A new ambulance car was also destroyed.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. The building and part of the equipment was owned by Corfield Motors and is partly covered by insurance. The stock owned by Mr. Simms also is partially covered by insurance. The flames could be seen for many miles.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

DON'T BE "OBVIOUS" IN YOUR MAKEUP

Do not let your makeup be too conspicuous in summer. Of course, it should manage to be as soft and flattering as possible at all times, but a too-brilliant pair of lips that will be forgiven when there are snowflakes in the air cannot beg anybody's pardon for their existence when the days are hot and the mere mention of bright red makes everyone's temperature go up a few more degrees.

In summer, people want to think of beauty as something fragrant, lovely, pastel-toned. It must be healthy and vibrant, of course. The pale-cheeked lass who fainted on the slightest provocation has done a permanent fade-out. But beauty should be as natural as possible.

Since your frocks are probably following a softer color scheme, your makeup should do the same. The shade of a blouse may quarrel with your rouge. If it does nobody is going to be sorry when you leave the clubhouse.

veranda. It is much better to err on the side of too-little color than too much when the sunshine is blustering the grass and the tinkle of ice in tall glasses is the loveliest sound the day can offer.

Make sure that your lipstick and your face rouge sound the same color note. Do not use a lipstick that has a purple slant and a rouge that leans to yellow. They will make your face appear to have been decorated for circus day. Above everything, you want to avoid a poster effect.

Many people prefer to use a soft, creamy paste rouge which will serve both for lips and cheeks.

Do not spread your rouge over undefined areas on your face. Use it in the place where it gives your face the approved contour and adds a sparkle to your eyes.

Powder which is heavy should be removed from your summer dressing table. Something light, fluffy, cooling will answer the purpose just as well. If a cream seems heavy and clogging now, although it did not appear that way in the early spring, the chances are that your hot skin has taken on a warm-weather attitude and wants its makeup lightened.

Planning Late Gardens

Failing Seeds Call for Careful Transplanting in Flower Beds

By DR. WM. A. TAYLOR

By early summer the gardener knows fairly definitely what his garden offers for summer and fall. He can count the results of successful seed plantings. He knows wherein his garden he failed to come up to his early hopes and plans, what seeds have failed to germinate, what seedlings have fallen to the ravages of the weather or of the damping-off fungus, cutworms, and other pests and diseases.

Rare, indeed, is a garden without any gaps, and it is time to touch up the picture.

With care and with heed to weather predictions good gardeners transplant annuals from crowded areas to spots not occupied by growing plants. The forward-looking gardener knew in the spring that the need for garden patches to move the seedlings when the need developed. If he started seed in house or under glass he may have transferred them to a little nursery outdoors to grow until needed for filling out the flower scheme.

Some annuals are easy to transplant—zinnias, marigolds, petunias, sweet asters, summer chrysanthemums and Drummond phlox are some of the varieties most useful for replacement. Nasturtiums, Iceland poppies and the lupines, because of their tap roots, are not so easy to transplant, and usually are planted where they are to bloom.

Replacement patching fills blank spots. The gardener may also want to improve the quality of the flower display, to create color harmonies and to avoid the clash of unharmonious colors.

Ordinarily blue flowers do not harmonize with reds—particularly with the orange shades of red. Some yellows and blues make charming combinations, but a purple instead of the blue may make the combination unattractive. Sometimes gardeners rearrange and break up unattractive combinations to break up clashing color combinations, even late in the season.

WHITE PREVENTS CLASHING
Often, perhaps, it is possible to improve the picture by judiciously adding white or green that will separate clashing colors. Some of the white and tinted flowers useful in this way are: Baby's breath, white candytuft, Chinasters, some chrysanthemums, Clarkias and snapdragons, white scabiosa, snow-on-the-mountain and white verbenas. Mignonette is particularly desirable among low growing flowers, but is rather difficult to transplant.

The effect of this kind of replanting may be either to introduce white flowers to break up clashing color combinations, or merely to break the color mass with the greenery of plants that will bloom at a later season.

Such changes often improve the floral display, but it is better, of course, to avoid the need for patching. The blooming season is the time to take notes of good combinations and of bad combinations. Get the notes in black and white as a reminder for next spring when you will be planning another garden scheme.

Plants taken from auxiliary beds and transplanted where seeds have failed will fill out the rows in your flower bed.

EMPIRE SPIRIT MUST PREVAIL

Constructive Note Essential to Success of Conference, Says Ralph Deakin

No Fear For the Outcome With Amicable Spirit Guiding Complex Temperaments

Ralph Deakin, foreign news editor of The London Times, who reached Victoria yesterday afternoon with the B.C. inspection tour party, expresses the view that the spirit of the Empire can be relied upon to meet and overcome any obstacle that may arise at the Ottawa Economic Conference.

Mr. Deakin is convinced that the one need of the moment is to strike a constructive note. Any suggestion of a defeatist spirit must be discarded. "If the conference can be inaugurated in a humane and amicable spirit we need not fear the outcome," said Mr. Deakin in an interview. It must be understood, he added, that one conference alone could not cure all the economic ills of the Empire.

CONFIDENT OF OUTCOME
The visitor expressed his confidence that the Ottawa conference would be a success, despite the misgivings that appear to have arisen in some quarters.

"My personal opinion is that these misgivings are due to two causes," he said. "Canada is a much bigger country in itself than Great Britain. It has ten parliaments instead of one, and it does not seem to me to have anything like the same intimate contact with the people who govern it federally at Ottawa as we are accustomed to have with our cabinet ministers at home. This is my personal opinion, based upon a brief impression here, and it is not intended in the slightest degree as a criticism."

"The second reason for any misgivings concerning the conference that I have noticed deserves, and is receiving the fullest sympathy of all visitors, and most particularly those who come from Europe. You have been hard hit by the depression. This change from the prosperous outlook, to which all North America had become accustomed, is quite naturally a bigger blow just at present than similar conditions in Europe, where we have got used to them over a period of years."

BROAD VIEWPOINT
Some people find consolation in the fact that the depression is universal, proceeded Mr. Deakin.

"They do not seem to me to be wrong in thinking along those lines, and we in Great Britain most fervently hope that the Ottawa conference will show that the British Empire still has men who can take the lead in patience and broad views, and in that pioneer work on which the world, shattered by war, will have to be rebuilt, a process that must be expected to last at least as long as the rebuilding of the much simpler world of 100 years ago, following the Napoleonic wars," Mr. Deakin said.

"The first duty of any serious-minded visitor to Canada, it seems to me, is to exert his influence in an appeal for broad views," said Mr. Deakin.

The conference would be made up of complex temperaments, and these must be amicably welded at the start. The newspapers of the Empire, he thought, had an important duty to perform in disabusing the public mind of any doubts or fears as to the successful outcome of the Ottawa conference.

REPRESENTATIVE PARTY

Speaking of the British Columbia tour party, Mr. Deakin observed that it was as representative of the ordinary, intelligent and alert British people as it would be possible to send abroad. Some members of the party were business men who were interested in the industrial life and the development of British Columbia's great natural resources. They were all convinced that this tour meant a great deal to British Columbia with the people of Great Britain and, in the Judging from the numerous inquiries that have been received by W. A. High tribute was paid by Mr. Deakin to the work of Mr. McAdam, who organized the British Columbia inspection tour party.

END OF WAR DEBTS URGED

Baldwin Tells British Commons That Is Way to ProsperityLondon, June 24.—Cancellation of war debts and reparations in Europe, for which Premier MacDonald is contending at Lausanne, was stressed as an essential preliminary to trade recovery by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, replying on behalf of the government to a non-confidence motion in the House of Commons yesterday evening.
The motion, sponsored by the Labor Opposition, was rejected by the House by 446 votes to 47.Russia was in a much happier position than Great Britain at the present time, declared Rt. Hon. George Lans-bury, Labor leader, supporting the terms of the motion that, "given a free hand to restore national prosperity, the government has entirely failed, as shown by the steady diminution of trade."
Mr. Baldwin claimed the tariffs imposed by the government were having the desired effect, although it would be two or three years before it was known whether official expectations would be fulfilled.
"An appalling amount of grit" had been accumulated in the machine of international trade, he said. To remove this, the first essential step was the cancellation of war debts and reparations in Europe.
"We can take comfort from the fact that we are facing the economic billard better than any other country in the world," Mr. Baldwin said. "We cannot expect to do more. The only permanent solution is a complete revival of trade."

PARTY MAY HAVE NEW LEADER SOON

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, June 24.—Conservatives of Manitoba gathered here to-day and surveyed the results of the recent provincial general election, in which the party suffered defeat at the hands of the Liberal-Progressive government party of Premier John Bracken. Unofficial post-mortems had already led to forecasts of a reorganization of the Conservative Party.
To-day's meeting was called at the request of the party leader, Lieut.-Col.
Fawcett G. Taylor. Rumors that Mr.
Taylor would offer his resignation as party leader in favor of W. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg lacked confirmation.

GREAT THRONGS SEEN IN DUBLIN

Eucharistic Congress Brings 300,000 Men Together at Mass MeetingThomas T. Champion, Canadian Press
Staff Writer
Dublin, June 24.—Thousands of the visitors to Dublin never kept such late hours as they are doing this week during the thirty-first International Eucharistic Congress, which has brought Roman Catholics from many parts of the world.
Most of them were out until the small hours following Wednesday's midnight mass, and yesterday evening the press of men for the mass meeting in Phoenix Park, presided over by Cardinal Lauri, Papal legate, was such that great numbers were unable to re-enter the city until early this morning.

INQUIRY ON PENSIONS SOON

Canadian Press
Ottawa, June 24.—Appointment of a joint committee, comprising representatives of the government and of the returned soldiers' organizations, with a view to examining the administration of the Pensions Act, will be made within the next few days, it has been learned here.
Some days before prorogation of Parliament, Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health, announced that, to meet the wishes of the veterans, a joint committee would work during the recess and would investigate the whole matter of war pensions. Action on this will be taken shortly and the personnel will be announced.
It is understood the matter of "frauds" in the pensions list will come within the scope of the inquiry. This was demanded by the officials of the Associated Veterans Wednesday, following publication of news items indicating many persons had made applications for pensions fraudulently, and that awards made by the various official bodies had been established to be based on evidence subsequently proved false.This evening women pilgrims will assemble in Phoenix Park for their own mass meeting, and it is likely the multitude will even surpass the men's meeting yesterday evening when 300-000 gathered. At a rough estimate the women at the congress outnumber the men by one-third.Long before the prelates arrived at the pro-cathedral for to-day's pontifical mass, streets surrounding were thronged with crowds which came to watch the stately, colorful procession.
The various sectional and national meetings continued in various Dublin halls throughout the day. The second Canadian meeting was presided over by Most Rev. William M. Duke, Archbishop of Vancouver, while Rev.
J. E. Brown of Moncton, N.B., gave the address.
Father Brown called attention to the fact that Ireland had produced almost 500 saints between the fifth and twelfth centuries.
"Ireland has preserved the faith of the Apostolic days," he added, "amidst the splendors and the miseries of civilization."
To-morrow will be children's day,
and they will assemble in Phoenix Park for a meeting similar to the two great evening mass meetings.

HOHENZOLLERNS DENY REPORT

But Talk of Attempt to Restore Monarchy Persists in GermanyAssociated Press
Berlin, June 24.—Hohenzollern family circles to-day issued the customary formal denial of a report published in The London Daily Herald saying former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm was visiting his father in Holland to attend a conference on the possibility of restoring the former monarch in Germany.
The current issue of Der Aufrechte, Berlin monarchist organ, expresses the opinion, however, following the downfall of the Brüning cabinet, that "monarchy is the necessary final goal of the present development, the consequences of which are not sufficiently comprehended in Germany."
The former Kaiser's sons now appear regularly at parades and demonstrations of veterans' societies, where they usually review the troops beside the commanders of these organizations.
According to the left radical paper Berlin Am., Gen. Franz von Epp, Bavarian National Socialist leader, and member of the Reichstag, visited the former Kaiser at Doorn recently to discuss the possibility of his return to the throne. Gen. von Epp, the paper said, was accompanied by "other responsible personalities of the National Socialist movement."

COMMUNISM ANGLE IN COURT

Montreal Judge Names
Minority Man as Loan Syndicate LiquidatorCanadian Press Montreal, June 24.—Alleged Communist leanings of some members of the Arbellet Ring Loan Syndicate caused Mr. Justice Patterson of the Superior Court here yesterday to ignore the claims of a majority group containing 178 creditors and appoint Adolphe Starke, the nominee of a minority group of seven, as liquidator of the syndicate.
The judge's action was preceded and followed by a stirring fight during which the majority group denied the contentions of the minority, and argued that even if the allegations were true it would have appeared in the court in appointing the nominee of the smaller group.
Testimony that funds of the syndicate had been used to promote Communist doctrines was given.
The syndicate was formed under provincial charter to make loans on personal security.
Mr. Starke was placed on the witness stand despite a protest from Michael Garber, appearing for the majority creditors, and said he had found an entry in the books of the syndicate noting the appointment of a delegation to attend a Communist convention at Toronto. At another place in the minute book there appeared an entry in which was recorded a donation of $10 in cash to send a member to a training school in Toronto. In reply to questions Mr. Starke said he had made inquiries and had learned the training school referred to was concerned with teaching Communist doctrines.
BY POLITICAL FIELD
From the minute book it appeared the syndicate had interested itself in provincial politics, the witness continued, for an entry appeared in which a committee had asked for funds with which to distribute circulars setting forth their views at the time of the provincial election. Also there appeared entries of payments to the Communist newspaper, The Kampf, and of investments in a camp in the Lau-rentians.
Joseph Morris, tailor, a member who had resigned from the syndicate, said he had investigated the Laurentian camp and had found lectures were given on Communism and on Soviet Russia. From what he had learned, he said, the camp was merely "blind"
and was run chiefly for the purpose of spreading Communist propaganda.NO ADJOURNMENT Lawyers for the majority group, which was stated to include all but a few of the creditors, contended the hearing should be adjourned in order that they might present testimony in rebuttal. Mr. Justice Patterson, however, said it was clear the syndicate's money had been diverted to an illegal purpose. In similar cases, he declared, the people had suffered great hardships through losing their money in such ventures.
Mr. Garber suggested the activities of the Arbellet Syndicate in the past had no bearing on the appointment of a liquidator, the action should be limited, he said, to the "indiscriminate throwing around of the bogey of Communism."
Appearing for the minority group,
Ernest Bertrand, K.C., senior prosecutor, recalled that some time ago, at the instance of the Attorney-General, the government was proceeding to begin the charter of the syndicate. Subsequently, in order to escape the proceedings, the company had voluntarily instituted winding-up proceedings, he declared.
The judge commented that for some time past the Attorney-General had been interested in loan syn-dicates, which he added were a "curse to the community."

COMMONS SEAT DECLARED VACANT

Canadian Press
Sorel, Que., June 24.—Alme Boucher, Liberal, who by virtue of one of the provisions of the constitution has been the first two years of the life of the present administration, yesterday was ordered unseated by the Superior Court of Quebec.
In the general election of 1930 Mr.
Boucher defeated Paul Comtois, Conservative, by 3,530 votes to 3,529. Con-testations and proceedings were opened against Mr. Boucher in the fall of 1930 by Napoleon Veilleux, a voter.
In accordance with the Elections Act
two judges heard the case. Mr. Justice
Jean P. Denis and Mr. Justice Louis Coderre of Montreal, who yesterday ruled against the successful candidate.
Charges against Mr. Boucher centred largely around a loan made by his election agent to Alfred Letendre of Pierre-ville, Que.ESTABLISHED 1901

FAITH SPREADS AMONG RUSSIANS

Touring Chaplain Visiting Montreal Tells of ConditionsMontreal, June 24.—Although Bibles have to be "bootlegged" into Russia, there is nevertheless a great revival of Christian thought in that country, according to Rev. F. J. Miles.
Col. Miles, who was senior chaplain of the Australian forces in the Great War, is now general secretary of the Russian Missionary Society.
"Evangelical Christianity is flourishing in Soviet Russia," he said yesterday. "Persecution has actually spread the faith. The greatest revivalof modern times is now taking place among the poor peasants of the Communist State."On the economic side the former chaplain said the remedy for Russian competition lay in the hands of other governments."The whole remedy is in our own hands," he said. "So long as we buy Russian products, so long will Russia deliberately try to upset markets. The capitalist nations are themselves providing Russia with the weapon it uses against them. If they should ever stop buying from Russia, within six months the whole system would fall to pieces."
"It is with their forced labor that you Canadians have to compete in selling your forest products in Britain," he said.
"Do you know that in England we can buy a Russian made door, ready for hanging, for the equivalent of $1.25 in Canadian money? Why, we could hardly buy the lumber to make it with in Canada for that price."
"And take wheat as another productIt is raised on collectivized farms by labor receiving nothing at all. Now can you afford to compete with it in the markets of Britain?"WOODWARD'S

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY

IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT THE PROVINCIAL government has ordered the non-resident unemployed in British Columbia to return to the provinces from which they came, the problem of preventing transients from the other side of the Rockies from coming into the province in the late fall and early winter will require special attention if a very serious situation is to be avoided.

Some time ago, Hon. H. H. Stevens declared that if the province really wanted to keep out people for whom there is neither work nor food, it could employ the police at the provincial border either to persuade them to turn back, or to arrest them for stealing rides on the railway or for trespassing on railway property. But he said emphatically that "this is not the function of the Dominion government." On the contrary, the enforcement and preservation of law and order in the province "is the constitutional right and duty of the provincial authorities."

As Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe very properly points out, while the obligation of maintaining law and order belongs to the province, the provincial authorities have no power whatever to exclude any person from entering British Columbia. It is all very well for Mr. Stevens to tell the provincial authorities to arrest those transients who are trespassing on railway property; but what is to be done with them after they have been arrested? Mr. Hinchliffe is on sound ground in the following explanation:

Under the law we may give them ten days in jail for vagrancy, then we must turn them loose at the jail door and they are again free to continue their journey. We may not escort them to the Alberta boundary, much less force them across that boundary. We have no authority to do so. We may arrest them by the hundreds but the taxpayers of British Columbia would have to foot the bill for their maintenance in jail; and after their jail term was completed, they could still remain in the province. Further, under the law, they may alight from the freight train just over the Alberta boundary and walk across in an orderly manner and we have no right to molest them.

After all, the case of the boxcar tourist is not one for British Columbia to deal with alone. In other years, of course, the provincial authorities have made it as plain as possible, by various forms of publicity in the press and announcements at railway stations in the prairie provinces, that those who come to this province in search of work in the winter months come entirely at their own risk. They have been told, too, that there is insufficient outdoor labor for our own people in the winter months. Our milder climate, however, has proved the irresistible attraction for many thousands who have taken the risk. The unemployment relief problem with which British Columbia is faced today has been very considerably aggravated by this annual influx during the last three years. Although some have re-crossed the Rockies in the spring and early summer months, many have remained, only to swell the ranks of the unemployed army.

No good purpose will be served by Mr. Stevens' attempt to pass the buck to this province. The situation calls for definite action on the part of the Dominion authorities in co-operation with the western provinces. It is late in the day to hark back to Mr. Mackenzie King's proposal for the appointment of a national commission to advise the Ottawa government on the unemployment problem; but it can be taken for granted that if Mr. Bennett had accepted that advice when it was offered more than a year ago, one of the most important questions to which such a body would have addressed itself obviously would have been that of distribution of transient labor. Powers with which it could have been clothed under extraordinary circumstances need not have been in conflict with recognized constitutional procedure. Meanwhile, British Columbia's difficulties are being added to by lack of action in this respect.

COMMISSIONER LAMB KNOWS

COMMISSIONER LAMB OF THE SALVATION Army is probably the most eminent expert on migration matters in the British Empire. It is doubtful whether any other British subject knows the empire as well as he does. He is just as much at home in Melbourne as he is in London, in Victoria as in Capetown. Hence, when he says anything about the subject which is almost part of his very being, he commands instant respect. His latest contribution to the realm of publicity which has been devoted to the ebb and flow of British peoples is an article in The Empire Review in which he deals with the report on Empire Migration by the Economic Advisory Council. This body suggests that in all cases of assisted migration each settler should be guaranteed a return ticket.

Naturally such a proposal is to Commissioner Lamb about the same as it is a red rag to a bull. But he sums up his objection to it in a few words: "The best settlers are likely to have the most severe attacks of homesickness, and as there is no cure, the sufferers must not be 'thrown overboard' by a cheap return ticket." The width of the gulf between one experienced in migration matters and those who try to see the empire, its needs, its hopes and disillusions, from a stuffy room in London, is illustrated by Commissioner Lamb's short sentence. No "council" or any other organization can guarantee the success of any man or woman who leaves his or her native land for another part of the empire or foreign country. Its influence begins and ends with such financial assistance and advice as it may be in a position to give. The very thought that a settler has a return ticket in his pocket is a virtual invitation to "beat it" for home on encountering the first reverse. Canada and the United States would be very sparsely populated now if all who have come to help in making this new continent had had return tickets in their pockets.

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE

"We can not afford to enter into agreements at Ottawa, however favorable they might be otherwise, which will cut us off from our foreign trade and we must not in the discussions there forget we have a great farming industry to take care of at home."—Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominion, in an article in the national labor fortnightly review, The News Letter, which appeared to-day.

THIS PLAIN AND STRAIGHTFORWARD statement from Mr. Thomas might just as well have been made by Mr. Bennett. Canada naturally will do her utmost to make the conference a success. She desires to increase her trade with the other countries of the empire; and she is just as anxious to increase her trade with the rest of the world. Her economic condition demands it.

Mr. Thomas emphasizes the fact that the other countries of the empire, as well as Great Britain, need the markets of the world—Canada for her wheat particularly, Australia for her wool; and if we are to lay the foundation for a real policy of imperial economic unity at Ottawa, we must do it in no hostile spirit to the rest of the world. Another point made by the British Minister was this:

Above all we must not turn Ottawa into a tariff poker party. We must rather try to give a lead to the world to break down tariff barriers which are one of the chief causes of the depression.

This means that if the conference is to be successful, all the delegates will have to go prepared to give something as well as take something. A fine opportunity will be presented, as Mr. Thomas suggests, to show the world how to eliminate trade restrictions. And, of course, the most effective solution of its major problems lies in the reduction of tariff barriers.

VON PAPEN AND HERRIOT

PAINFULLY SLOW AS THE PROGRESS being made at Lausanne may be, one important ray of hope is the prospect of France and Germany disposing of some of the differences which are not only holding up this conference, but are also impeding the progress of the disarmament gathering still in session at Geneva.

For the first time, Chancellor von Papen and Premier Herriot conferred alone to-day and after extended their deliberations to include other members of the German and French delegations. France is giving ground but slowly. She has brought herself to admit that at the present time it is impossible for Germany to make any reparations payments; but she declines to admit that payments in the future will be impossible. As an evidence of Germany's good faith, however, Chancellor von Papen has privately proposed a military alliance between his country and France as a means of meeting the French demand for security before disarmament. He is of the opinion that such an alliance would be the best way of solving the problems which are facing the disarmament conference as a result of French insistence on security first.

The question of reparations naturally must be settled in some fashion—Britain's proposal to wipe the slate clean is blocked by France, and debts are not easy to discuss with the United States while the election campaign is on—but of very much greater importance is the proposal which the German Chancellor has made to France. If such a military alliance were negotiated, it would have far-reaching results. France's fears would be killed, for her whole demand for security is based on fear of Germany's ultimate revival in the military as well as in the economic sense; and apparently unsolvable problems of disarmament, as well as other problems in Europe, would soon be capable of solution.

Of paramount importance to the world at large is the outcome of the conferences at Geneva and Lausanne. Failure of both or even one would suggest to the people of every nation that international statesmanship is bankrupt. It is the duty, if our civilization is to be preserved, of the delegates to both these gatherings to produce practical results. Real leadership is on trial.

THE ALL-CANADIAN ROUTE
The St. John Telegraph-Journal

There has been too much talk, and not enough careful consideration and action, in connection with the matter of a national transportation scheme in this country. As a result, Canadian ports are seeking in vain for traffic which by all the rules of economy and patriotism should be theirs, and meanwhile many Canadian railwaymen and dock workers are among the unemployed.

A FORESTRY CRUSADER
The Toronto Globe

Virtually in the glare of furious fires that are destroying Canada's timber wealth, Mr. F. J. D. Barnjum continues his crusade for the preservation of the country's forests. The disappointing fact is that this work of preservation is being left almost entirely to Mr. Barnjum. He has been asked to spend $50,000 in the purchase of a tract of land in Quebec to be used as an experimental forestry reserve.

"Have a heart!" says Mr. Barnjum in reply. "I have already spent more than a quarter of a million dollars in my forest conservation work during the past twelve years. I have recently expended $50,000 in saving for posterity some of the big trees of Vancouver Island, and am now en route there to save another tract of these rapidly disappearing remnants of the once-magnificent forest that crowned that island down to its shores. One man cannot do it all."

One of the most discouraging tasks any enthusiast could face is the arousing of public interest in forest preservation. In this respect the old saying is well exemplified: What is every one's business is nobody's business. Day by day the forests are being destroyed by fire, and the tragedy of it is realized only when human beings and wild animals come rushing out before the flames, when life is threatened and settlements are destroyed.

No one ever seems to know how a forest fire is started; but carelessness is the main explanation. If this destruction continues it may become necessary to keep all campers and wanderers out of the bush areas; otherwise the country soon will be denuded of forest, with the consequent dearth of moisture and the impoverishment of agricultural land. The time may not be far off when governments and people of Canada will wish they had heeded the voice of Mr. Barnjum, at present crying in the wilderness.

Loose Ends

Some more comfort out of the heavens—some amusement with the Canadian Navy—and the real solution of our present problems, all complete.

By H. B. W.

MOUNT WILSON OBSERVATORY reports the discovery of carbon dioxide in the infra-red spectrum of the atmosphere of Venus. This makes it quite possible, if other circumstances are favorable, that there may be life of some sort on Venus, just as there may be on Mars. But astronomers refuse to get excited about it, for life to the great Professor Shapley is a "minor cosmic phenomenon" while the great Jeans call it "a mere accidental and possibly quite unimportant by-product of natural processes which have other and more stupendous ends in view." These gentry are too busy observing the vast universe beyond the minute solar system to worry about the inhabitants of a few second-rate planets, if any, and yet I think they are wrong to regard Venus and Mars and the earth with contempt; for if they are right, if the only life is on one or two planets and is doomed to extinction in the relatively near future, what is the use of observing outer space? Indeed, is the use of observing anything or learning anything or doing anything at all?

THE GREAT scientists thus turn out to be the most illogical and useless of men, for they reduce life to such a point that it is not worth living, not worth preserving, not worth understanding, for in the light of their theories there is really nothing of real concern to us to be observed. The universe is no concern of ours and we are no concern to the universe. Their expanding knowledge finally ends in such an utter vacuum, such a complete negation, such an ultimate despair and uselessness, that ignorance is infinitely more comfortable, much more useful. As a matter of fact, if you read Jeans, as I have been doing lately, you soon find yourself reduced to such a nothingness that you hardly think it worth while to eat your dinner. He says, for example, that "the total number of stars in the universe is probably something like the total number of grains of sand on all the seashores of the world," and most of these stars are so big that hundreds of thousands of earths could be packed inside each and leave room to spare. This universe, says Jeans, was evidently not intended for the production of life at all. Except on the earth and perhaps on one or two other planets, it is utterly hostile to life, which couldn't survive either in space, because it is too cold, or on any of the stars, because they are boiling hot. Into this grim and lifeless immensity life stumbled by a mere accident and will only last a little while, until our third-rate sun cools off a bit and makes the earth too cold for us. The universe, having no use for life, has been made hostile to it, will soon be rid of this miserable clinging experiment and, most humiliating of all, being dead itself, it will never realize that there has been an experiment at all. We shall not be remembered, because there won't be any living mind to remember us, and the stars, more numerous than the grains of sand on all our seashores, will go on forever and mindlessly and meaninglessly forever.

THIS is the finest flower of scientific thought, the final perfection of astronomy, and the more true it is, the better we shall be without it. Without it at least we may enjoy what we have while there is yet time. And still it is comforting in a cold sort of way, I mean to say, that time you are going to think about the depression, next time you are tempted to complain about our governments or the quality of radio programmes or the latest women's styles, pause for a moment and remember those shoals of sand out there in the sky, each hundreds of thousands of times higher than our world, each of them barren of life, all of them oblivious of us or of our entire tenth-rate solar system, which will soon cool off and blot out all the life in the whole remarkable arrangement. Thinking on such things, I fancy you will realize there isn't much meaning to the depression, to any of your troubles or to anything else. We owe a lot to astronomy.

WHILE THERE is yet time you must see to it that you are not at the stage at the Empire Theatre this week. Its production "The Middle Watch" is the best amateur show I ever saw, and probably one of the best ever achieved in these parts; a magnificent comedy to start with, produced with a professional touch by Mr. Harold McGrath, and then the higher you go, the more you suppose the naval men give a genuine touch to a naval play, set on a warship, but actually these fellows seem to be able to do anything. I have seen them under a great variety of circumstances, and they appear always equal to any emergency. Once of them once fired a leak in the water-pipe up at our lake with a piece of inner tube and some cord, a temporary job which has lasted seven years so far and seems good for another seven. I suppose it is the training, which equips a man equally for sailing a ship, fixing a leak and acting a play, all with equal facility.

AS A MATTER of fact, while navies would not exist in a perfect civilization and while their continued existence is one of the chief economic burdens of the world, the men in this service are invariably such good fellows that one does not like to think of them being dismissed out of it. They know their jobs in a fashion which you seldom witness ashore. It is my private theory that if the fishermen knew their jobs half as well as the navies know theirs, then they would have managed to disarm the navies, they would have brought some kind of sanity into international relations long ago. Anyway, "The Middle Watch" made me laugh so hard into the ear of a distinguished army officer who happened to sit in front of me as to quite ruin his evening and complete the satisfaction of mine. I recommend you to do likewise.

IT SEEMS that the problem of these times is quite simple after all. It seems that we have been making it appear too complicated, creating a lot of imaginary difficulties instead of facing the basic issue, before us: In brief, what we need is leadership. Yes, I have found that out beyond all question to-day. George Pudbury told me about it first. "What we have got to have is more leadership," said Mr. Pudbury, who at the moment was having difficulty in leading his big red bull down our road. Later in the morning a leading business man told me what we needed was leadership. Then a leading municipal politician told me we must have more leadership. I also read in the paper an address by a leading leader of industry, who said our crying need was leadership. In the same paper was a photograph of a leading educationalist addressing a graduation class and telling it that its great opportunity was leadership. It happened that I was attending a luncheon club and the speaker of the day, a leading business man from another city, insisted that all we needed was leadership. At the same table with me was a leading British Columbia politician, who said that everything would soon be all right if we could only get a little leadership. Just now a fellow on the radio from New York was expounding a new theory of the depression. He said the solution was just more leadership. Leadership is everywhere in every branch of activity are agreed on it. So there is no need to worry. Leaders everywhere are merely waiting for leadership. It is indeed encouraging.

THE BEER BARONS

TO THE EDITOR:—Extract from Sunday's Vancouver Province: "MAYBE TO LOOK ALL. While compensation for beer parlor operations has been suggested in Esquimalt in the event of the area voting dry, it was stated officially to-day that there is no provision for such compensation under any provincial statute. If Esquimalt goes dry, every beer parlor operator will simply lose his investment. It is for that reason that beer men, generally, do not think the government should have permitted any wet district to hold a new vote under an amendment to the Liquor Act inserted at the recent session of the Legislature. The government holds, however, that the whole basis of beer sale in British Columbia is complete local option."

The arrogance of the beer barons in Vancouver and Victoria is impressive. "They do not think the government should have permitted any wet district to hold a new vote." The answer to that is the government can do anything, but there may be an entirely different government in a few months who could amend the act to pay compensation. As the beer barons are very rich, they would be free to play Esquimalt anyway they desire by buying out all the property of dissenters at about 80 cents on the dollar. Those who oppose with them would not have to be bought.

Or perhaps a better plan would be for the government to buy up a neutral zone out of the four municipalities, guaranteeing them free play.

TO-DAY'S PLEBISCITE
To the Editor:—To-day the people of

Esquimalt have an opportunity to vote for better conditions or for a continuance of the distinction of providing beer by the glass, bootlegging and the aroma of hot dog stands for the Greater Victoria area.

Many citizens of Esquimalt feel that men and women should have the right to buy a glass of beer whenever they want one. But they should know that on this occasion a vote for beer parlor is a vote to continue drunkenness on street cars and to attract customers to our local bootleggers, thereby making bootlegging more profitable in Esquimalt than it is in the residential districts of Victoria and Oak Bay. The common excuse for drunkenness is that visitors to the beer parlors go from them to the bootleggers and mix their drinks. Everybody knows that such conditions destroy property values, cause land to revert and increase the burden of taxation on those who own homes in this municipality.

If the people of Esquimalt vote to protect their own interests and to abolish beer parlors, the men who built or altered premises in order to sell beer by the glass should receive reasonable compensation from the government. Such compensation should have been provided for when the Liquor Act was amended last session. But if that had been done the plea for sympathy for the proprietors of beer parlors would have been weakened.

Residents of Esquimalt should know by this time that our party politicians will grant any reasonable request that is presented by the beer interests, because the beer interests have been so generous to them. According to press reports of the evidence before the Royal Commission of 1926, the beer interests had given over $50,000 to the politicians of British Columbia in a little over a year. We do not know what contributions have been made to party funds since then. But, with an election in sight and campaign funds scarce, we may feel sure that our party politicians cannot bear to be ungrateful to old friends who are engaged in the extremely profitable business of manufacturing and selling British Columbia beer.

The committee that prepared the petition has worked hard to put an end to conditions that would not be tolerated in Victoria or Oak Bay. The plebiscite has been granted after a persistent struggle that has lasted over a year. The request that the plebiscite should be carried out on the voters' list used by the canvassers was refused, as there was delay until the new voter's list was ready. The government safeguards the welfare of the beer interests; and if Esquimalt residents use their common sense to-day they will look after their own.

B.C. WOMAN IS GIVEN MEDAL

Native Sons Honor Mrs. James Macaulay Who Helped Establish V.O.N.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 24.—Vancouver's good citizen for 1932 is Mrs. James Macaulay, 4825 Osler Avenue. She is the selection of the Native Sons of British Columbia as recipient of the organization's good citizenship medal for this year.

In choosing Mrs. Macaulay for an honor established by the Native Sons of British Columbia several years ago, the selection committee pays tribute to a pioneer who came to Vancouver in 1890, and who since then has been associated with many national and civic undertakings.

V.O.N. WORK
Perhaps the most noteworthy achievement of the 1932 good citizenship medal nominee is that in association with the late Mrs. D. Gavin of Vancouver she initiated action which resulted in the establishment in 1897 of the Victorian Order of Nurses of Canada, the success of which has led to adoption of the institution in other parts of the empire.

Mrs. Macaulay and Mrs. Gavin presented original plans of V.O.N. to Lady Aberdeen, then in residence at Rideau Hall, Ottawa. Mrs. Macaulay was the first life member of Vancouver branch of the organization and its president for many years, retaining the office until 1919.

HOSPITAL ESTABLISHED
Mrs. Macaulay is a charter member and an outstanding pioneer president of the Local Council of Women. As members of the Local Council, Mrs. J. C. MacLagan and Mrs. Macaulay organized a meeting of eighty business men to consider better hospital accommodation. This resulted in establishment of the nucleus of the present Vancouver General Hospital in Fairview, replacing the obsolete building formerly occupied on Cambie Street.

Another worthy activity of the 1932 medal nominee was her work in association with a small group by whose efforts the Children's Aid Act was passed in British Columbia. That was followed by formation of the Children's Aid Society. She was a director of that organization, and later as a director of the Alexandra Orphanage devoted years of effort to that institution, of which she was elected a life member.

For a number of years Mrs. Macaulay was associated with the Y.W.C.A. here and held the office of vice-president. She was also an early promoter of the Arts, Historical and Scientific Society.

LETTER FROM QUEEN
As honorary president of the Royal Needlework Guild, she was honored when Viscountess Willingdon presented on behalf of Queen Mary a gift and cordial letter of appreciation for her services in connection with that work, despite her loss of sight.

Charter members of the Vancouver Women's Canadian Club remember her as one who assisted in its formation. She is an honorary vice-president of that organization.

IN POLITICAL FIELD
Mrs. Macaulay's activities also extended to the political realm, for in 1910 she called the first meeting of representative women to take steps with a view to obtaining the franchise for women on equal terms with men. That meeting was followed by organization of the Pioneer Political Equality League.

This distinguished citizen was one of the early presidents of the women's auxiliary of the Vancouver Pioneers' Association.

Several years ago Mrs. Macaulay was compelled to retire from active participation in welfare work owing to the loss of her sight, but she has continued to be the inspiration and guide for many active workers who invariably look to her for advice in times of perplexity.

Members of the selection committee of the Native Sons of B.C. describe their nominee for the Good Citizenship Medal for 1932 as one of the city's most beloved and trusted leaders of campaigns for civic betterment and social welfare in days gone by, seeking no reward but completion of work on hand.

IRVING BITZ
SALVATORE SPITALO

New York, June 24.—Salvatore Spitalo and Irving Bitz, underworld figures who tried to get the abducted Lindbergh baby back, have convinced police they know nothing of the killing of Vannie Higgins, beer dealer, who was shot to death last Sunday.

They presented alibis which apparently stood up under inspection, for neither was held.

King of Siam Loses Powers in Revolt

Bangkok, Siam, to-day saying the army had mutinied and seized the royal family as hostages to insure the success of a revolution.

The royal palace was surrounded by hostile troops and rebellious soldiers and sailors thronged the streets, she said.

Later King Prajadhipok and other members of the royal family were removed to a warship.

Army tanks rumbled through the streets in the hands of rebels, and machine gun squadrons were frequently passed in British Columbia. That was followed by formation of the Children's Aid Society. She was a director of that organization, and later as a director of the Alexandra Orphanage devoted years of effort to that institution, of which she was elected a life member.

GERMANY LIFTS IMPORT SURTAX

Canadian Goods Enter Under Ordinary Tariff Till Treaty Is Negotiated

New Discussion Expected After Empire Economic Conference at Ottawa

Canadian Press
Berlin, June 24.—A new trading agreement between Canada and Germany was reached to-day under which protective tariffs will be modified for mutual benefit, providing details of a new most-favored-nation treaty can be arranged within six months.

The agreement was forecast by the German Government two days ago, negotiations with Canada having been under way for some time. At the present time German goods undergo the full tariff impost entering Canada.

The indication to-day was that the proposed German surtax on Canadian goods had been abandoned and a most-favored-nation treaty would be negotiated following the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa in July and August.

BACK TO OLD BASIS
Ottawa, June 24.—Canada and Germany have been conducting intermittent negotiations looking to the conclusion of a trade agreement for the last three years, but without result, it was explained to-day. The situation up to the beginning of the present year was that German goods entered the Dominion under Canada's general tariff. On April 1 the German authorities imposed a special surtax against a score of Canadian commodities, which led to further representations by Canada.

The net result of these negotiations is that the surtax has been removed, and that Canada and Germany continue under the old agreement. It is anticipated that, following the Imperial Economic Conference, further negotiations will be carried on looking to the completion of a new trade agreement between the two countries.

During the calendar year, 1931, Canada's exports to Germany were to the value of $11,503,790, while imports from Germany totaled $12,031,397.

Wheat was not one of the items to which the German surtax applied. The surtax was imposed on goods from July 1 next, it is stated here.

MAN EXECUTED AT LONDON, ONT.

Canadian Press
London, Ont., June 24.—Henry Quinn, thirty-five-year-old Sarnia, Ont. man, was hanged at the county jail early to-day for the murder last January of Samuel Weinstein in a grocery store hold-up.

Quinn spent his last hours calmly in the jail cell with his spiritual adviser, Rev. Father Joseph Cook, and marched across the jail yard without faltering.

He was executed on the scaffold on which Wallace Ramebottom, youthful accomplice of Quinn, was executed last April for his part in the murder.

Quinn was not present at the actual slaying of Weinstein, which was done by Ramebottom, who had entered the store alone to carry out the robbery. But he had planned the robbery, according to Ramebottom's evidence at his own trial, and was on the street some distance from the store waiting for the gunman when the shooting was done.

FARE DEBATE IN VANCOUVER

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 24.—The special committee appointed by the Vancouver council to seek fare concessions from the B.C. Electric Railway Company met W. G. Murray, president of the company, this morning. The meeting was held in the office of Mayor Louis D. Taylor.

The city recently asked a six-cent fare, but the company refused to abandon its seven-cent rate. The council decided to seek some compromise and named a committee to meet company officials.

Failing a compromise, it is stated, it is possible the question will proceed to arbitration.

"But not only the proposals made at that conference will have to be abandoned in toto, if the present conference is to be a success, but the government's attitude toward other parts of the Empire in the matter of tariffs will have to be changed completely from what it has been since the present government came into office."

NOVEMBER 15 IS LIMIT
Any preferential advantage in trade between Canada and Great Britain "will end completely," will be swept away altogether on November 15 unless between now and then, which means as the Imperial Economic Conference, an agreement is reached whereby British products and merchandise can find a free entry into Canada, or at least an entry corresponding in advantage to that which Britain is prepared to give the Dominions," declared Mr. King.

Refusal of the Bennett government to outline the stand it would take at the forthcoming conference was creating a serious situation, Mr. King asserted.

WARNING FROM VOTERS
Referring to the significance of the contest in this constituency, the Liberal chief said a by-election could be made to serve both as a warning and a guide to those administering the affairs of the state. He believed "a decisive vote of the electorate against the policies the present administration has been pursuing may cause the administration to alter those policies."

Canada's attitude at the forthcoming conference should be that of the British Government as stated by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, taking "the broad view—free trade, freedom of trade. That, it must be perfectly apparent, is the only view which will make the conference a success," declared the Liberal leader. "It is the only view which will lead to a development of inter-Empire trade. It is the only view

The former Crown Prince's visit, the first he has made to Holland in seven years, the paper said, was to attend a conference of former members of the German royal family and monarchist politicians on the possibility of restoring the Hohenzollerns to the throne in Germany.

The former Kaiser is spending a short vacation at Zandvoort.

The Herald said the former Kaiser's secret talks with German bankers and politicians began last week at Zandvoort and were interrupted by his decision to return to Doorn for the week-end.

Yesterday, it said, he returned under cover of darkness to the palatial mansion of Baron von Helldorf at Zandvoort and was joined a few hours later by the former Crown Prince, who had arrived there after a dash across Germany from East Prussia.

"With the arrival of the former Crown Prince," The Herald's account said, "the gathering was complete for hearing reports on the situation in Germany and developments in the monarchist movement. The private talks between the bankers and politicians and the secret emissaries continued until late last night."

The official communiqué merely said the German Finance Minister had submitted a detailed statement of Germany's financial position and the conference would be resumed.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

MOTHER MAY CREATE WILFUL APPETITELESSNESS IN CHILD

The moment the mother embraces the idea that she has to "make" the child eat, she runs head-on into trouble. Despite the fact that mothers are warned repeatedly not to make a fuss when children won't eat, they find this difficult advice to follow. Something in the mother's very nature forces her to show strong emotion in the face of appetitelessness, even while her better judgment tells her that it is not only useless, but also actually increases the appetitelessness.

Why?

What every mother can do, since it is essential that she do something, is to try to discover why the child has no appetite. If she thinks that the eruption of several teeth is temporarily robbing him of appetite, by all means do nothing about it. As soon as the teeth have erupted and the baby is comfortable again, the appetite will revive.

Sickness or even the most trivial kind is certain to make baby indifferent to food. It is well that he is. The system is in no condition to wrestle with heavy meals, and this is no time to make an issue of appetitelessness. Give the child an opportunity to get well and let the appetite take care of itself.

BID FOR ATTENTION

If the child has learned that he can create a satisfying disturbance at the table by saying, "I'm not hungry," or even by pushing his food away stubbornly, it would be a strange child who wouldn't repeat this performance. Mothers know this. They know quite as well that they should sternly quell any desire to make a mountain of this molehill. But do they? Not to my knowledge. They simply grow desperate and show their desperation and baby plays upon this wild chord to get more attention, rewards and favors.

My leaflet, "Physiological and Psychological Reasons for Appetitelessness," enumerates all the well known causes for appetites to curl up and die. It also warns mothers against those universal practices at the table which eventually make the child's pretended appetitelessness his greatest and most effective weapon. Any mother may obtain this leaflet by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with her request to this department.

Mrs. G. D. H.'s boy of seventeen months refused milk unless he could have it in his nursing bottle. When the bottle was taken away from him, he refused milk altogether. Now his mother is sure that he will strave to death. She admits that he is cutting about five teeth and she is suspicious that this may be a temporary cause of his appetitelessness, but she hasn't the courage to wait and see what will happen after the teeth are in.

I suggest, Mrs. G. D. H., that nothing at all be done at the moment. Feed the child three times a day. Cook his cereal in milk and put some milk over it. Offer a small cup of milk to drink and be calm if he pushes it away. At noon give meat or cheese or egg, perhaps some milk used over his vegetables, and a pudding made with milk. At night repeat the morning meal. If he gets orange juice daily, don't fuss about the fruit saucers at night, or try some other varieties toward which he has developed no distaste. Be certain that such a healthy child is not going to be in any way injured by this self-imposed fast. The doctor gave you the best possible advice. You have no problem except of your own making.

PIONEER NURSE WRITES BOOK

Miss Elizabeth Scovill Publishes Volume at Eighty-four Years of Age

St. John, N.B., June 24.—Among the pioneer nurses on this continent, New Brunswick is represented by Elizabeth Robinson Scovill, who, in her eighty-fourth year, recently brought out a new book, "Common Ailments of Children." Associate editor of an American women's magazine in the early nineties, author of books for children and health books, assistant to Lady Aberdeen in the formation of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, Miss Scovill says: "Life here is good."

Born in Saint John April 30, 1849, Elizabeth Robinson Scovill is the daughter of Samuel James Scovill, a grandson of the first rector of Kingston, N.B. In 1879 Miss Scovill entered a school for nurses at Boston and it was while in training she first began to write for publication. "I have seen," she wrote to a friend, "the growth of trained nursing in America from its earliest stages."

For ten years she had charge of the infirmary at St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., and later she was superintendent of the Newport Hospital, Newport, Mass., for six years.

She has always been a bit of a traveler—to England, to the Pacific Coast, going as far north as Alaska, to South Carolina, where she has spent four winters. During one of her visits to England she met and talked with Florence Nightingale.

Since her retirement from actual nursing, Miss Scovill has written many books for children, several in words of one syllable; books for older boys and girls, and books for men and women, all revealing her determination, her clear vision of the future, her ability to think and act in emergencies, and other sterling traits she has inherited from her loyalist ancestors. She is in England now, contemplating, it is said, a transatlantic flight to Canada. Indeed, "Life here is good."

NANAIMO WOMEN CHOOSE OFFICERS

Miss Blanche Macdonald was re-elected president of the Nanaimo Business and Professional Women's Club at the annual meeting held yesterday evening. Mrs. Klippert was elected vice-president, Miss Cecil Lawrence, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Winifred Monk, recording secretary, Miss Nell Rowbottom, treasurer, and Miss Elsie M. Waugh, press correspondent. The annual reports were read, showing the club to be in a very flourishing condition.

A very busy business day had been conducted, the president, Miss Macdonald, was presented with a Wedgwood cup and cream set, in appreciation of the services rendered the club. Miss Macdonald, although taken by surprise, thanked the members for the gift and assured them that it had been a pleasure for her to work for the club.

Dainty refreshments were served under the convenship of Miss C. Lawrence, from a beautifully-decorated table.

By SISTER MARY

There's nothing like a birthday party when one is from four to eight and the weather is fine. The wise mother will welcome the chance to entertain small guests out of doors, even if the weather is not perfect.

Since most small persons nap every afternoon, why not plan to have the party from three to five or four to six in the afternoon, depending on the ages of the host or hostess and the guests? If the latter hour is chosen time is allowed for the simple birthday supper before the early bedtime. If the earlier hour is preferred ice cream and cake can be served when the guests arrive without "spoiling" the regular supper at home.

The following menu is suggested for a supper party:

Chilled Fruit Juice
Creamed Chicken on Toast
Pars in Mashed Potato Casserole
Ice Cream
Coke

The fruit juice is merely orange juice made pink with raspberry juice and not too cold. Four tablespoons served in punch glasses make an adequate appetizer for small persons.

When preparing the toast for the creamed chicken cut it in half-inch squares after toasting and before covering with the chicken. The squares are of course placed close together on the plate of toast, but the little squares are pleasing for tiny hands.

The peas are most attractive served in nests of mashed potato and mean that the whole wheat butter sandwiches cut in fancy shapes could be served with this course but are not necessary since toast is used.

No party is complete without ice cream and cake with candied sponge cake with a thin icing and plain vanilla ice cream are most suitable for children, although any simple cake and ice cream will do.

Dainty refreshments were served under the convenship of Miss C. Lawrence, from a beautifully-decorated table.

These suggestions for sandwich fillings may help you.

Mixed chicken with shredded lettuce moistened with lemon juice and oil.

Finely chopped prunes combined with peanut butter and made moist with cream.

Nuts and raisins chopped and moistened with cream.

Shredded lettuce and finely chopped hard cooked eggs made moist with boiled salad dressing. Cook the eggs for thirty minutes in water just at the boiling point.

In making the sandwiches butter both pieces of bread. The filling sticks better and the sandwiches are easier to handle.

The following recipe for ice cream is excellent for little children.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

One quart milk, 1 cup sugar, few grains salt, 1 junket tablet, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 cup whipping cream.

Crush junket tablet and dissolve in water and vanilla. Add sugar to milk and heat slightly, not more than "blood heat." Stir to dissolve sugar. Remove at once from heat and cool to lukewarm temperature. Stir in dissolved junket and vanilla and water. Pour into freezer mold and let stand undisturbed until "set." Then pack in ice and salt and freeze to a mush. Fold in cream whipped until firm and finish freezing. This ice cream is best frozen in six parts ice to one part ice cream salt without stirring.

The recipe will serve eight persons.

TO-MORROW'S MENU
Breakfast: Ready to serve cereal with sliced bananas and strawberries, cream, waffles, maple syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Casserole of green beans and bacon, rice croquettes, stuffed cherry salad, iced chocolate.

Dinner: Vegetable plate, jellied lime and cheese salad, blueberry muffins, milk, coffee.

Garden Party At Mrs. T. H. Laundry's Delightful Affair

A substantial sum was added to the funds of the Ladies' Aid of the Church of Our Lord, Free Church of England, as a result of the very enjoyable garden party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Laundry, Beach Drive, yesterday afternoon. The host and hostess welcomed the guests in the garden, the brilliant sunshine enhancing its many attractions. Clock golf proved a popular feature.

Tea was served in the house by Mrs. Laundry, who was assisted by the president, Mrs. E. Heddle, and Miss E. Helmsken. The dining-room was decorated with sweet peas and Canterbury bells. The drawing-room and hall were gay with delphinium, Canterbury bells and graceful sprays. The afternoon was enlivened with vocal and instrumental solos.

Mrs. J. A. Morris contributed three charming songs, accompanied by Mrs. Cecil Laundry, who also gave two instrumental solos.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

CHAPTER I

The green roadster cutting its way sleek and ribbon-like, down the boulevard came to an abrupt, jolting stop at the intersection with Twenty-fourth Street.

Cherry Dixon's chin rose to meet the sweep of the cold wind. Fluttering ends of a coral scarf escaped from her throat to a mad dance over one shoulder. It was one of those days in early April when brilliant sunshine showered down on the world without warming it. The pale gold radiance seemed almost to make the air more biting. But it was spring sunshine, spring air and the combination was irresistible.

Cherry crooked her wrist for a quick glance at a watch dial. Only 1:10 noon. She was not due for twenty minutes. There was plenty of time—oh plenty to reach the Wellington for her 1:30 engagement.

She had known all along there was time enough. Little danger that to-day of all days she would be late.

Another halt for traffic lights and then on again. Cherry's impatience was gone. "Wait a day it was to be late. To know the beige suit was as becoming as it was new, to be on her way to meet an exciting young man and to know—at least to know almost—that she cared as much about the meeting as the diet."

Warm color that could not have been accounted for by the April wind crept into Cherry Dixon's cheeks. A chance observer, feminine, would have been almost sure to think "Lucky girl!" at sight of Cherry, so pretty, so youthful, at the wheel of her expensive roadster. A chance observer, masculine, would have been almost sure to think "Lucky break to know a girl like that!"

Well, Cherry thought that she was lucky. For some of the reasons chance observers might have cited, however.

It had been the greatest luck in the world, surely, that for the second time in a week she was to see Dan Phillips. Oh, it had been simple to manage, telling mother about the Guild committee meeting and to drive into town alone. There had been a committee meeting—until Gretchen postponed it. For that matter, what other girl of nineteen would have to explain where she was going and with whom if the notion to take a drive at midday happened to strike her?

The roadster reached the viaduct and was swept into the street of east-bound travel. At Twelfth Street—Wellington's busiest thoroughfare—boasting three buildings twenty stories high—the flash of green was almost lost in the crush of taxicabs, trucks, limousines and small, wheezing vehicles.

There was no time now to try to justify her deception, no time for day dreams. The shrill authoritative blast of an officer's whistle sent the swarming mass ahead. The girl in the green car managed expertly to keep abreast of the current. Three blocks more the roadster swerved to the curb before the Hotel Wellington.

Cherry stepped out, surrendered the car to a doorman and entered the gay stone building. She crossed the lobby and mounted the broad stairway leading to the mezzanine.

Mazie Cassidy, whose glowing titian curls and blue eyes made the cigar stand a highly decorative corner of the lobby, tapped the arm of her friend. Joe Kampschmidt, who was leaning over the glass surface of the counter.

"Well—look what blew in!" Mazie whispered in a tone that belied her indifferent gaze.

Kampschmidt concentrated on the slim figure ascending the stairway. "Some baby!" he said casually. "Who is she?"

"Some baby's right!" Mazie commented. "What I wouldn't give for the dough her old man's got! Cherry Dixon—that's her name. Lives out in Sherwood Heights in one of those swell houses with a yard around it as big as a farm. I've seen her picture on the society pages. Most of the time she's away in Europe or at some swell school or something. Gosh—some people have all the luck!"

"How about me, Mazie? Do I get a break this trip or are you going to another of your sixteenth cousin's weddings?"

Mazie grinned. "You can call me," she said. "About 8 o'clock. There's a new orchestra at the Crystal ballroom."

Whereupon Mazie Cassidy and her friend forgot their interest in Cherry Dixon for more personal subjects.

It was twenty minutes after Cherry Dixon's arrival that a tall young man strode into the Wellington lobby. He wore a gray suit and carried a topcoat. His gray felt was tipped at an angle just slightly rakish. Broad shoulders, rather angular. Not a handsome young man but an attractive one.

In a dozen strides he had reached the stairway. Someone sang out, "Hi! Phillips!" just before he rounded the bend of the stairs. The young man turned, waved in salute and continued on his way.

The mezzanine floor of the Hotel Wellington was a rather narrow gallery running the length of the Twelfth Street side of the building. It was thickly carpeted and furnished in shades of wood green, bronze and ivory. Groups of over-stuffed chairs, benches and four high-backed lounges were arranged near the iron work railing to overlook the first floor. Small desks and chairs stood beside the wall. The lighting was dim because heavy draperies shut out the daylight and only small desk lamps supplemented it.

The young man in gray gained the top step and looked about. None of the persons in sight seemed to interest him. There was a stout mah in dark-rimmed spectacles writing at the nearest desk. Further down the wall, engaged in conversation, one of them gestulated emphatically. At the extreme end of the gallery a small boy was bobbing about after a mechanical toy.

The young man stepped forward uncertainly. All at once he caught sight of a beige shoulder nearly hidden by a perfect background for her coloring. He made for that chair.

"So there you are!"

"Oh, Dan—!"

Brown eyes laughed up at gray ones. The girl was prettier when she smiled. The green velvet of the chair was a perfect background for her coloring. The small, rather oval face was creamy ivory except where tinges of rose burned through on each cheek. Curling lashes made the dark eyes darker. Her lips were crimson, possibly exclaimed by the silver vanity case she held. Nature had designed those lips to be wide but the effect was charming.

Any expert would have said, too, that Cherry Dixon's nose was a fraction short of classic standards. Somehow the defect increased instead of detracted from the piquant total.

The tilted brim of her close-fitting brown hat revealed a crescent of dark hair over one temple. Except for the brown hat and coral scarf Cherry was entirely in beige—beige suit and sweater, beige pumps and cobweb shoes. The tone suited her perfectly.

Dan Phillips pulled the nearest chair nearer and swung into it.

"A thousand pardons if I'm late," he began. "I had three clocks and a watch and I set 'em all—"

"But you're not late. You're five minutes ahead of time. See?" Cherry held up a slender wrist banded with platinum. The tiny oblong dial on the platinum band recorded twenty-five minutes past one. "I came in early for some errands and finished them sooner than I expected," she added. Prevarication No. 2 for Miss Cherry Dixon that day, but surely she must keep him from guessing at her errands.

"Then it's all right. Of course the three clocks each keep different time and I couldn't be sure—excuse me, Miss Dixon, but I've got to stop right here and tell you that of all God's fairest creatures you are the prettiest, the most utterly devastating—"

"Please, Mr. Phillips," the cheeks were crimson but the girl's eyes were laughing.

"Mr. Phillips? I thought it was going to be 'Dan' from now on."

"Well, then, Dan, stop it. You're making fun of me!"

"If I ever heard blasphemy—I! Coyotes and cut-throats! Why, my dear young woman, I'd as soon cut out my right arm. What I really meant to say was that the prettiest girl in the world is looking prettier than she has any right to look. What's going to come of this? You can't keep it up, you know. These old eyes won't stand it. You can't keep getting more beautiful every time I see you!"

Cherry rose to meet the teasing. She said demurely, "Sorry, sir. You can always look young, you know."

"But that's just what I can't do—" and don't want to. Say, are you as hungry as I am?"

The abrupt change of subject made the girl laugh. "Perishing," she said. "Positively perishing!"

"Then let's find food!" Phillips snapped two fingers together with a resounding crack and was on his feet. Cherry arose and for an instant they stood there, the girl's head only a little above the youth's shoulder. Her eyes held a dancing light of happiness. The young man's face sobered. He touched her arm and together they moved toward the stairs.

Five minutes later they faced each other across a narrow table in the hotel's ivory and blue dining room. Phillips had finished giving the order.

"And how did you improve the shining hours?" he asked.

"Oh, doing lots of things. Mother's having a small tea next week and I helped with the invitations. Then some dresses came and when I tried them on they were all wrong and I had to telephone about sending them back and arrange for a fitting. After that Sarah gave me a shampoo and a manicure and—let's see—oh, yes, I called Aunt Clara to see if she wanted some concert tickets and she talked about half an hour. She always does. That's all, I guess."

"The life of the idle rich!" Dan Phillips sighed with mock sympathy. "Lord—you must be frazzled."

"How about yourself? What kind of a busy bee have you been?"

"Shall I tell you?" Phillips leaned forward, grinning. "Rolled out of bed at exactly 12 o'clock—according to my four timepieces. I looked at them all, subtracted the minute hands and then the square root and then called the operator downstairs. She told me it was 12 o'clock. The boy's clever—what?"

"That's the laziest kind of morning I ever heard of."

"True enough," Phillips agreed. "But listen, child. Old Uncle Daniel was out until 2:30 this a.m. looking for that kidnapped James kid."

"The one who was stolen? Oh—did you find him?"

"No, unfortunately! Just as I was leaving the office last night a phony tip came in and—Bates told me to hop on it. Wordan telephoned the kid had been seen out near Somerset. I went out with a couple of deputies and covered every square foot of the damned place. Don't suppose you've ever been to Somerset. No, well, congratulate yourself. Anyhow, it was just another evening wasted and the editor of Wellington News none the better for it. We didn't get back into town until after 1 o'clock."

"And they haven't found the little boy?"

"Not according to the noon edition. Personally I don't think they ever will."

"Oh, but I hope they do! I was so sorry for that poor mother when I read about it. The way she's been planning his birthday party and her new tricycle she'd bought. It seems dreadful."

"But it's hard on the parents. Nice people, too. But it's been a wreck. There hasn't been a single clue that led anywhere."

The waiter set glass-domed plates before them. Sweet-bread patty and asparagus for Cherry. A roast and vegetables for Dan.

"Coffee now, sir?" the waiter asked. They decided to have the coffee later. The girl broke a bit of Melba toast and buttered it.

"When you talk about the places you go and people you see," she said, "I'm so envious. I've been on the floor of the theatre, but the workers still always right there when something exciting is happening! It must be thrilling."

"Some times," Phillips agreed. "Most of the time, though, it's just pounding sidewalks or sitting around waiting for something to happen. Why, we haven't had a real story except the James case for weeks. You set fed up on it."

"But the thrill of seeing your name at the top of a column—and on the front page, too! That must be wonderful."

Phillips smiled. "It was," he said. "Four years ago. The day I got my first by-line you'd have thought someone had just handed me a couple of railroad tickets. That was in Kansas City, Kansas, not Missouri. As I remember, it wasn't a bad story I'd written, either."

"How long have you worked on newspapers, Dan?"

"Oh, about five years, counting summer vacations. I've been on the news eighteen months now. That's almost a record! Before that I was on The Sentinel for six months."

Studio Workmen Develop Lingo

By ROBERT GRANDON

Chief electricians are gaffers.

Bedlam is nothing to a screen studio just before a talkie is shot. You hear shouts and yells and hannas and bangings and conversation in a patois which requires an interpreter to untangle for the screenie studio has developed its own working lingo.

Particularly is this true of the electricians. The chief electrician is a "gaffer." Why? Because he throws the gaff in his underlings, of course. If a "gaffer" is the "best boy" or "best man" when the "gaffer" blows his whistle for lights on, the "best boy" sees that all of them are lighted and shouts "All's cooking!" and the shooting begins.

Some of the expressions are carried over from the stage. "Grips" are general reoustabouts who handle scenery, as they were in legitimate days. A "rigger" is the repairman who installs burned out lights and his helper is a "carbon monkey." The "catwalk" has replaced light ladders and griddons on stage, but the workers still "go high" when they ascend.

"Broad's" is a cant expression for certain ladies, but in the studio it means rectangular Kilg lights that stand on the floor. If a "broad" is suspended, it becomes a "scoop." Cooper Hewitts are "banks" or "tubes," depending on the kind, and other types are the "sun," "rim" and "baby," which is a baby spotlight to play up the star's features. Blasco employed them in numbers in all his stage productions.

An "ash can" is a powerful arc light three or four feet in diameter, so named because it looks exactly like one. "Silks" and "oils" are cloths and parchments used before a lens for an "ear muff" is a pasteboard shield to keep light rays from striking the camera lens, and a "gobo" is its title when it has grown to six feet. A "frost" is a layer of glass placed before an arc to diffuse its light.

One day I'll tell you something more about the lingo of the studio.

He popped out of the woods.

It must be either that they are yelling because they are having such a good time, or else they howled because they saw one of the Bad Chaps.

"In that case," said Mrs. Longears, "we had better hurry there as fast as we can. If the Fox, the Wolf or the Bob Cat is after the picnic children, we must save them!"

"I agree with you there," exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "So come on! We'll go to the picnic as fast as we can and save the children."

Quickly Uncle Wiggily sprinkled some red hot pepper on the tires of his car. He always did this when he wanted his car to go fast as the tires were made of big, round, fat bologna sausages and they always rolled faster when pepper was sprinkled on them.

So, in a little while Uncle Wiggily, Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were at the picnic ground. There was the ice cream, the lollypops and the chocolate cake. None of the animal boys and girls had touched any of the good things yet, for Nurse Jane had made them promise not to until Uncle Wiggily himself reached the picnic.

Standing around in the Pine Woods were the pussy cats, the puppy dogs, the rabbits, squirrels, chickens, ducks and all the animals of the forest. They seemed to be acting in a very strange way.

"Why aren't you playing games?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Baby Bunty, 'Because,' answered Baby Bunty. 'Because why?' Mrs. Longears asked. 'Because of the animal,' said Bunty. 'What animal?' Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"A very funny animal," said Jingle. "He popped out of the woods at us just now."

"Was that why you screamed?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Yes," answered Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister. "It was. We were playing tag, all of us, when, suddenly, out of the bushes popped this funny animal."

"Was he one of the Bad Chaps?" asked Uncle Wiggily, looking about for a big stick.

"Not like any of the Bad Chaps I ever saw," said Baby Bunty.

"Well, what did the funny animal look like?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Oh, he sort of looked like a dog and like a cat and like a chicken," said Baby Bunty.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "That must be a very, very funny animal. I shall go look for him. Don't be afraid. The funny animal will not hurt you. It may be just a picnic boy. I'll go see."

What the rabbit gentleman found you shall know to-morrow when the Jack's adventure. And please don't let the canary bird go to sleep in the goldfish bowl instead of the bread box. He could be reached.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Funny Animal

By HOWARD K. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily, Nurse Jane Puszy Wuzzy and Mrs. Longears were on their way to the picnic grounds in the Pine Woods. Ahead of them had gone to the same picnic grounds all the animal boys and girls. Uncle Wiggily also had sent loads and loads of ice cream, lollypops and chocolate cake for the picnic lunch.

"But if this keeps up," said Mrs. Longears to her husband as they stopped in Uncle Wiggily's automobile, some distance from the Pine Woods, "if this keeps up we can't go to the picnic."

"Oh, no! I'd be afraid," said Nurse Jane.

"Afraid of what?" asked Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose.

"I don't hear that howling," said his wife. "It was some of the Bad Chaps, I'm sure. You know the Pine Woods was the place where the Fox and Wolf tried to catch you Tuesday."

"Yes, I know," said Uncle Wiggily, looking toward the forest as he sat in his car. "But they didn't catch me, and this is Friday. And the reason the Bad Chaps didn't catch me was because all my jolly children friends helped me to drive them away."

"That is true," said Nurse Jane. "And now," went on Mr. Longears, "with the children already in the woods, with the good things to eat, waiting for us to come to start the picnic, do you think it would be right for us to turn back?"

"No," his wife said. "I do not. We must go on and save the children from the Bad Chaps."

"I say so, too," added Nurse Jane. "But I am not so sure," she went on, "that the howling we heard came from a Bad Chap."

"From whom did it come, then?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I think it was some of the children howling," said the animal children. "Having lived with the animal children many years she knew the ways they howled very well, indeed. 'I'm sure I heard Baby Bunty's voice,' said Nurse Jane. Also the voices of Jingle and Jangle."

"I think you are right," spoke Mrs. Longears.

"Well, then," went on Uncle Wiggily, "if it was the children howling at the picnic grounds in the Pine Woods."

"He popped out of the woods."

It must be either that they are yelling because they are having such a good time, or else they howled because they saw one of the Bad Chaps.

TESTS FOR NEW CANCER WORK

Ontario Doctor to Describe Experiments to Institute in London, England

Canadian Press
London, Ont., June 24.—When Dr. F. J. Campbell lays before the Imperial Cancer Institute in the near future the result of five years' research at the University of Western Ontario in this city, the prediction of Hon. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health of Ontario, that when the work became known "it would set the whole world agog" will likely bear fruition, according to statements in university circles.

Dr. Campbell left Wednesday evening for England. Yesterday the result of his work was confirmed, and it was stated the result of his work and that of Dr. E. P. Johns, his co-worker, would be published this fall, probably in The British Journal of Pathology.

Dr. A. B. MacCallum, dean of the University Medical School, declined to comment concerning the work, beyond saying it was "extremely important" and was the only research on cancer going on in Canada that held promise of results.

"It is not a cure," he said definitely, "because it has not been used clinically so far."

GERM THEORY OVERBOARDED
The two scientists had abandoned the germ theory of cancer, Dr. MacCallum said, adding that germ had practically been ruled out as a cause by cancer research in the past few years.

It was learned that seventy-five white mice had been successfully inoculated with cancer and it was further understood cures among these mice had been effected by the London doctor.

Distress Reported Among Former British Army Men in Canada

Canadian Press
Ottawa, June 24.—Distress suffered by pensioners of the British army, now residing in Canada forms the subject of representations being made by the received by the delegates.

Continued progress had been made in mission work, Mr. Morse stated. There had been 129 baptisms during the year and progress in church membership was steadily maintained. A. B. MacCallum of Victoria moved the adoption of the report, which was well received by the delegates.

YOUNG WIFE

Confides in Neighbour

Life was sad for Helen Balfour. Marriage, after three months, had begun to lose its gay romance.

One day, as she was hanging out her clothes on the line, she summoned up her courage and tearfully told her troubles to Mrs. Trimble, her kind-eyed next-door neighbour. Mrs. Trimble listened to her story patiently. She had two married daughters of her own and understood. She talked to Helen and encouraged her with helpful suggestions for making her housework easier, and, greatest of all, straightened out Helen's biggest trouble—the weekly wash.

Learns Laundry Secret

"Now washing's not such a terrible task," explained Mrs. Trimble gently. "First, use a good soap. I'd advise you to use the brand I always buy—Pearl White Naphtha. You'll find it a good practical laundry soap, Helen, and a lot more economical than most. Then, soap your clothes and put them to soak overnight in cold water. You will find that, as the water temperature rises to the heat of the room, more dirt is loosened than would be if the water were cooling. In the morning, rinse your clothes thoroughly in warm water and you'll never have any more trouble with your wash."

Thousands of women have learned this valuable laundry secret. Get the Pearl habit yourself—Pearl means efficient work in less time and at less cost. That's something to remember these days.

Launch Engineer Drowns in River

Port Arthur, Ont., June 24.—James Dampier, forty-eight, engineer in charge of the Canadian Pacific Tourist Launch Nipigonian, was drowned in the Nipigon River yesterday. It is believed he fell overboard while leaning over the side from the after-deck to inspect the exhaust.

He could not swim and sank before he could be reached.

SAYS ECONOMIC SYSTEM WRONG

Vancouver, June 24.—In presenting the report of the trustees board to the British Columbia Baptist convention Wednesday, Rev. C. K. Morse commenced with a statement regarding the economic situation. He spoke of "the utter inadequacy of the present system to meet the needs of man" and urged that an intensive study should be made by the Christian church to seek a remedy. There will be no speedy recovery, he said, and the spirit of faith, justice, mercy and love exercised by individuals and nations alike will bring about better conditions.

Continued progress had been made in mission work, Mr. Morse stated. There had been 129 baptisms during the year and progress in church membership was steadily maintained. A. B. MacCallum of Victoria moved the adoption of the report, which was well received by the delegates.

Pestiferous
Women Are Malignant

Dorothy Dix

They Seek Others' Help to Kill Time

The Column Indicts Idle Women When Suffering Humanity Needs Nursing, Feeding and Clothing,
And Would Like to Sentence Them Heavily.
Especially Those Who Bore Working Women

ONE OF the greatest pests in the world are the women who have nothing to do, and there should be a pound in every community in which these idle, purposeless creatures could be corralled, as there is for straying cattle.

For they eat up our time worse than grasshoppers devour the crops. They consume our substance worse than mice. They irritate us more than the bite of a mosquito, and, alas, we have not protection against them. We can't screen ourselves against them as we can against the stinging insects that drive us wild. We can't swat them as we would a fly, nor can we hand them a lethal dose of rough on rats as much as we would like to.

For the trouble with the women who have nothing to do is that, nine times out of ten, they are our best friends and the dearest, sweetest, kindest, most generous people in the world and we adore them. They have every virtue under the sun except understanding and appreciation of the position in life of others. Or perhaps it is selfishness they lack or perhaps just plain ordinary gumption. Or maybe they haven't got that fine sixth sense that enables us to know when we are getting on other people's nerves. Or perchance it is just because they are so hell-bent on amusing themselves that they don't care whom they sacrifice to make themselves a holiday.

Anyway, there she is, and we have all got one of her. A charming woman, a good woman, with nothing on God's earth to do but to kill time and, unfortunately, she has to have somebody to assist her in committing the crime, so she wishes the job off on us, and she does it blithely, deplorably, with apparently no thought but that we will also have the time of our lives participating in the ghastly rite.

Sometimes she even does it with a self-righteous air of conferring a favor on us. For nothing is commoner than for the woman with nothing to do to say to us busy ones: "I'm so glad I dragged you out of that dreadful kitchen or took you away from that old desk, because you work far too hard. It is so silly of you to always be grinding away the way you do." Whereat we smile a sickly smile and curse her in our souls, because well we know that the work has to be done and that by interrupting us she has only made our task ten times harder.

The woman who has nothing to do has all times and seasons for her own, but her favorite hour for making a nuisance of herself and victimizing us is in that breathless period in the morning when we are trying to get the day's work planned out and started. It is just when the woman who has all of her own housework to do and her husband and two or three children to get fed and brushed up and started off to business and school and she is trying to get the baby bathed and the toddler dressed and the breakfast dishes washed and the grocery order telephoned and the house straightened up and about a million other chores attended to that the woman who has nothing to do drops in for a nice, long visit.

And she stays, and stays, and stays, and stays and talks endlessly about nothing, while the busy woman writhes in her chair, and dashes up to make stabs at her accumulated work and wishes she had a bomb that she could throw under her caller's chair that would blow her to Kingdom Come.

Or perhaps it is a woman who writes or paints or designs or does some other sort of professional work that the woman who has nothing to do decides upon as her victim, and upon whom she descends, for a morning's entertainment. Here, too, she sits and sits and sits and gossips and gossips and maunders on and on and on about herself, her symptoms, her clothes, her car, what she said to this one and what he said to her. Apparently it does not cross her mind that a working woman's time is money and that she is costing her unwilling hostess far more than the price of a seat at the grand opera and that not many women are spellbinders enough for their conversation to be worth that much.

Nor does she seem to realize that the labor of the business and professional woman has to be done and that if she wastes their time in working hours it merely means that they must work that much later at night. An hour's call in the morning must be paid for by a couple of hours overtime and generally a missed dinner in the evening.

But much the woman who has nothing to do does. I once remonstrated with one of these idle ones about the actual cruelty she was committing in dropping in almost every day on an exceedingly busy woman whose work she interrupted and whose position she endangered by taking up so much of her time, and the glided butterfly's only reply was:

"Oh, nonsense. I do her good taking her mind off her work for an hour or so. Besides, it amuses me to go to see her and I have to be entertained. Time hangs so heavily on my hands."

And, of course, when you lock your door against the woman who has nothing to do she creeps in over the telephone, and there you are, Helpless. Defenceless. A martyr crucified on one end of a wire, while she gabbles and gabbles and you call on your patron saint to give you patience and wonder why on earth the telephone company isn't humanitarian enough to charge a hundred dollars a word for every conversation over three minutes.

In a world that is full of opportunities for constructive labor; in a world of poor, overworked mothers, of ragged children, of helpless old people, of things that need to be done in every city and town and hamlet, there is no excuse for any woman not finding something useful to do, something to occupy her heart and mind and hands.

But if she is too lazy to do that, I beg and implore her to have a heart and not make a pest of herself by being a perpetual visitor and interrupting the work of those who are trying to do something. Enjoy their leisure with them, but don't monopolize their working hours.

Indian Adventure Stories

V—THE CHIEF AND THE BLACK MAN

The skins of men of other races were a wonder to Indians in early days. When Columbus and his sailors reached the West Indies, the natives thought that the strangers must have been painted white. Indians also wondered about the black skins of negroes with whom they came in contact.

"No, Massa Injun," he said. "I don't want no drink."

Chief Black Horse of the Comanche tribe once made a trip through Texas with a war party. He left the rest of the party at a certain point, while riding through the woods he caught sight of a man riding.

"First I think I kill him," said the chief at a later time. "But he no look back and I see him have black skin—like a crow. His eyes heap white. I no kill him. I want catch him and see him good."

Black Horse fitted an arrow to his bow and galloped toward the negro. The frightened black man threw up his arms and cried:

"Please, massa Injun, don't kill me. The Indian led the mule and his captive toward the Comanche camp. On the way, a stop was made at a waterhole. Black Horse and the negro got down off their steeds, and the chief told the other to lie down and take a drink.

The negro shivered. He shook his head, and his eyes rolled about while his teeth clicked.

"No, Massa Injun," he said. "I don't want no drink."

The Indian then lay down to drink. What happened after that, happened very fast. Let the chief tell it in his own way.

"I was heap thirsty. My head low, my feet high. Black man catch my belt and catch my hair. He hold me up and throw me in water hole. 'I sink to bottom, but come up to top. Rub eyes and get water out. See black man riding my horse and kicking it with both feet. He too far away to catch. He leave his old mule, but it no good."

"Indians make heap big laugh when Black Horse come camp on mule."

Horoscope

SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1932

Astrologers read this as an unimportant day in planetary direction. Brute aspects dominate.

The aspects seem strongly to encourage any sort of constructive or progressive enterprise. Those who produce food or other necessary commodities are well directed.

This is read as a most auspicious role for architects and builders. Home-owning is to become more and more popular, despite recent widespread troubles over mortgages, the seers prophesy.

Under this role real estate should be active and all who deal in land should be fortunate, especially those who dwell in places that attract because of low living expenses.

Again the aged should benefit. The youth movement will gain strength, but once more the counsel of older persons will be much sought, astrologers announce.

In the army of 1932 graduates are numbers of young men and young women who possess super-talents that will be developed in the next ten years, the seers prophesy.

Occultists declare that the average mental attainments of the rising generations are extraordinarily high. For this reason they believe that many great leaders will be recognized.

Events of tremendous importance are to reveal in the United States men and women of supreme ability, the seers prophesy.

The age of twenty-five is peculiarly significant, it is foretold, and future history will contain much concerning those who were born in 1907. Those who first saw the light in 1917 also should be of extraordinary character, mentality and purpose, astrologers declare.

Russia, said to be under the flag of Neptune, may be expected to seek power on the Black sea, it is foretold.

A new alliance between Persia and Russia has been indicated by those who read the stars. The earth is under a planetary movement making for many changes.

The death of a former ruler of a great nation is foretold, but it will be of only passing interest at a time when present-day international questions are exacting

Persons whose birthdate it is have the sagacity of a year of great fortune. Expansion of professional interests is indicated.

Children born on this date probably will be endowed with exceptional ability and energy. Many subjects of this sign achieve success by original endeavor.

VETO EXPECTED
FOR RELIEF BILL

Washington, June 24.—A gigantic $2,300,000,000 unemployment relief bill, designed to provide food and work for the jobless and give new impetus to industry, was passed yesterday by the United States Senate.
The Democratic relief programme was approved and sent to conference origing elimination of the liquor traffic.

with the House of Representatives by a chorus of "yeas," without even the formality of a record vote, despite strong indications that it faced a veto from President Hoover.

CHURCH LEADER ELECTED

Calgary, June 24.—Rev. C. C. Mc-Laurin of Calgary was elected president of the Baptist Churches of Alberta at the annual convention here.
The association went on record as far-oring elimination of the liquor traffic.

ROTARY MEET IS SKETCHED

Victoria Delegates Give Highlights of International Convention

District Conference Will Probably Be Held in Victoria Next Year

Highlights of the great convention of Rotary International in Seattle this week were sketched before Victoria members of the Rotary Club yesterday luncheon in the Empress Hotel by fellow Rotarians, who returned on the 12.45 o'clock steamer from Seattle. Vic Clark presided in the absence of George McGregor, president, and introduced the speakers.

Percy B. Scourrah told of Canada's contribution to the programme. He said the speech of Mr. Justice M. A. The entertainment at the Seattle conference of the district was excellent, and Bob Webb of Victoria took an active part and put in a good word for this city.

The British Empire dinner, held Wednesday evening in the Olympic Hotel was sketched by Alderman James Adams. He said it was one of the outstanding affairs of the convention and

"MIDDLE WATCH" PROVES POPULAR
Many Victorians Attend Empire Theatre to See Naval Group in Clever Comedy

The extremely funny naval comedy, "The Middle Watch", presented by the Naval Dramatic Society at the Empire Theatre, will show again this evening and twice to-morrow, in the afternoon and evening.

The appearance of Marine Ogg, played by James McGrath, and the severe spinster aunt, Charlotte Hopkinson, admirably portrayed by Miss Vivian Combe, mark the commencement of a highly hilarious and complex situation, and the desperate but unavailing efforts of Capt. Matland and Commander Baddeley to prevent the admiral from learning that two charming young ladies are sleeping in the adjoining cabin, bring continuous shrieks of laughter and applause. The climax of what appears to be a hopeless problem is solved in the last act in a manner which is simply adorable, and leaves everybody feeling they have spent a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

At the matinee performance to-morrow between fifty and sixty inmates of the old Men's and Old Ladies' Homes will be the guests of the Naval Dramatic Society.

Proceeds of this splendid stage production will be donated to the St. Joseph's and Jubilee Hospitals.

DOMINION THEATRE
Just as Barbara Stanwyck stands apart as an actress, so does she stand apart as an individual. Neither the splendid nor the ordinary of the movie changes the tenor of her life. She loves praise, naturally, and takes criticism when it is constructive, sensibly, but all the while she is a realist. Barbara would not even notice it, so busy is she being happy and independent in her own world.

In private life Barbara Stanwyck is Mrs. Frank Fay and she likes the role so well that she is forever threatening to retire permanently under that title. Barbara Stanwyck is playing "Forbidden", the Columbia picture now showing at the Dominion Theatre. In a career of outstanding brilliant acting, this is her greatest performance.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE
Victor Pote, famous a number of years ago as "Slippery Slim" in Broncho Billy's "The Virtuous Sin", Paramount talking film of the Lajos Zilahy's play, "The General", at the Playhouse Theatre.

The lanky comedian, playing a sentry in the Russian army, joins a cast which includes Walter Huston, Kay Francis, Kenneth MacKenna, Jobyna Van Orman and others. Louis Cramer and George Cukor directed from an adaptation by Martin Brown, playwright.

COLUMBIA THEATRE
Western photoplays are enjoying a popularity seldom equaled since the early days of the talking picture, current reports from several widely separated theatres show.

From the flood of sophisticated dialogue dramas which sweep the screen comes the coming of "The Virtuous Sin", Paramount talking film of the Lajos Zilahy's play, "The General", at the Playhouse Theatre.

The lanky comedian, playing a sentry in the Russian army, joins a cast which includes Walter Huston, Kay Francis, Kenneth MacKenna, Jobyna Van Orman and others. Louis Cramer and George Cukor directed from an adaptation by Martin Brown, playwright.

Windsor, Ont., June 24.—Stories of nude bathers at the Riverside municipal bathing beach and at other points along the five-mile front of the town have developed a new problem for the police.

Now there has been a marked increase in slow moving traffic along Riverside Drive and the police are hard put how to overcome the new problem.

"It is bad enough to have to be watching out that people put on bathing suits," opined one of the officers, "but to have to keep dodging out to the street to see that traffic keeps moving makes the work more irksome."

Spotting near Hope, B.C., on Wednesday, a car that had been reported stolen. Provincial Police Constable Ralph Lees, a Victoria boy, drove after it and succeeded alone in making a capture following a lively chase.

Arresting the three occupants, he took them to court, where they were remanded for eight days. Loaded firearms and some stolen property were found in the car.

Accounts were passed and fifty cords of wood were ordered for heating purposes. Reports from Mrs. Nora Hewlings and H. W. LITTLE WORK AT DOUKHOBOR HOME

Unemployed Advised to Save Trouble Trying to Get Work at Pier Island

Unemployed men are advised not to journey to Pier Island in the hope of getting work. During the last few days many men have gone to Swartz Bay and endeavored to get across to the island but so far only a dozen hands have been taken on.

It is not likely that more than fifty men will be employed in fitting up the new home for the Doukhobor nudists. The men required will be engaged by the Dominion Government through the Nanaimo Conservative Association, in whose riding the work is being carried out.

As a result unemployed men are advised not to waste the few dollars they may have in trying to get to the island and secure jobs.

IDEA TO BRING CAPITAL HERE

William A. McAdam, Tour Organizer, Tells of Work of B.C. House in London

Thousands People With Capital of $21,992.59 Sent Here in Four Years

"I want to say how glad I am, after nine years' absence, to be once more in Victoria," said William A. McAdam, secretary to the B.C. agent-general in London, following his arrival in the city as the organizer and director of the British party making a tour of the province.

"There is little doubt that in this idea of an inspection tour of the province, British Columbia has given the empire a lead," he added.

"For the first time in the history of any overseas government, British Columbia has entered the tourist field for the purpose of developing its medium of bringing capital and enterprise into the province. The members of our party are not mere tourists, they are for the most part professional and business men who have embarked on this 12,000-mile trip to see what the province has to offer them. They are traveling as the paying guests of the government and, may I add, having regard to the many offers of hospitality we have received from all parts of the province, almost as the guests of British Columbia as a whole.

ONTARIO FOLLOWS LEAD

"We happen to be first in the field, Ontario has followed our lead, and I have no doubt we shall be widely imitated. But we're nothing to worry about, for after all, there's only one British Columbia."

"In a sense, the idea can almost be said to have evolved itself. For years past we have been receiving at British Columbia House, London headquarters of the government, inquiries about life and conditions in the province of a character that made it abundantly clear that under pressure of world conditions generally a class of inquirers had come into existence to whom first-hand acquaintance with the province was an essential preliminary to any financial and domestic changes they might have in contemplation. Hitherto, our practice had been to send inquiries to the centres in the province as seemed to meet with their requirements. A far more satisfactory arrangement suggested itself of bringing them out in an officially conducted party under government auspices.

IMMEDIATE RESPONSE

"Accordingly, under the authority of the British Columbia executive council, we issued a broadcast invitation with all things considered, to the province. Responses came to us not only from all parts of the British Isles, but from places as far apart as Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Italy, Switzerland, Hungary, Holland, Algeria, India and South Africa.

"Especially gratifying has been the whole-hearted co-operation of the province. From the Premier, who gave us a most stimulating message by way of send-off to our campaign, right down to the smallest municipality, which placed itself unreservedly at our disposal, we have received nothing but unqualified assistance.

"British Columbia has, I think, given a lead to the Empire. One of the most stimulating messages by way of send-off to our campaign, right down to the smallest municipality, which placed itself unreservedly at our disposal, we have received nothing but unqualified assistance.

"The Prince of Wales' great appreciation of the message addressed to him by the members of the British Columbia Government party, who are shortly sailing from Liverpool. His Royal Highness is glad to hear of this tour, and wishes them all a very pleasant journey. He knows that this tour will be of great interest and value to the province, and that they will receive a warm and hospitable welcome in British Columbia, a province of which His Royal Highness, from his own visits there has many happy memories.

"For us at British Columbia House," Mr. McAdam went on to say, "this general recognition of what we are trying to do is most valuable."

"Too little is known by the people of the province not only about our work at British Columbia House, but about the building itself. Someone has described it as being the first building in the first street in the first city in the world. It is certainly unique among all government buildings in that it is based on figures supplied to us by the people themselves. Whether the whole of that capital has actually been transferred to the province we have no means of knowing, but certainly the great interest and value have been taken within the province, which is to say that something like $1,000,000 of new money has come into British Columbia from this source alone.

"British Columbia House stands for service. The work we do embraces almost every phase of human interest affecting the people of British Columbia and Great Britain in their relation to each other. The development of the resources of the province, the marketing of its products, the financing of its industries, the provision of an alert intelligence service for its commerce, and the furtherance of capitalist settlement—these are the regular every-day features of our activities as the servants of the people of the province."

Donald McMillan, 634 George Road, was fined $20 in the Saanich Police Court yesterday afternoon when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving to the common danger.

"Human Fly" Is Warned

"Monkey" Laird's Pole Climbing Stunt Results in Police Lecture.

While the police are not "spoilsports" for boyish escapades, the promiscuous rickling of life and limb or frightening the public by dare-devil stunts is not countenanced by any means.

This doctrine was sternly impressed by city officers this morning on Gordon "Monkey" Laird, "human fly" boy, following his latest thriller. Laird was one of five boys who climbed the dome of the Parliament Buildings on Wednesday.

Yesterday evening the youth created a great deal of excitement in the Fairfield district by ascending a light pole at the corner of Moss and George Streets and standing on the top of it, waving his arms. Housewives stared aghast from their front doorsteps and urged the boy to come down but he was fearless and frightened them the more. Eventually the police patrol was called. Laird was firmly warned to cease such stunts.

Theatre Managers Complimented For Public Spirit on Home Products

Appreciation of the public spirit which prompted John M. Many local manufacturers were present and announced their intention of placing displays in the main lobbies of the theatres from next Monday until the following Saturday. THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTE

Victorians in Steady Stream Pass Before Bier of David Spencer at Church

Metropolitan Crowded Long Before Service; Floral Tributes Massed Around Pulpit

While the bell in the church tolled, Victorians in a steady stream passed before the bier of the late David Spencer as he lay in state in the Metropolitan Methodist Church early this afternoon.

The body was removed to the church during the noon hour. When the doors of the church were opened to the public a long line formed, two and three deep, extending up the aisle from the pulpit before which the coffin rested out to the entrance doors of the church.

The stream of persons passing the bier continued uninterruptedly until the funeral services were begun. It is estimated some thousands passed by in that time.

At a pulpit platform of the church and the sides of the choir were banked with wreaths and other floral tributes. There were beautiful floral designs from the managers and staffs of each of the Spencer stores on the Mainland as well as the Island.

A blanket of roses covered the closed casket as it lay open and flowed down and along the aisle. This was from the staff of the Victoria store, with whom Mr. Spencer had been closely associated. This blanket of fresh cut garden roses was woven early to-day by a group of girls from the store.

The church was filled with the public an hour before the services were set to begin.

HONOR MEMORY OF D. SPENCER

Real Estate Board Passes Resolution and Closes Offices During Funeral

Members of the Real Estate Board of Victoria at their regular meeting to-day honored the memory of David Spencer by a special resolution, which expressed their sympathy to the widow and family. The members also closed their offices during the funeral this afternoon.

On a motion of A. R. Wolfenden, the secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to the relatives of the late popular business leader of the city.

Fred Landsberg paid a glowing tribute to the charitable spirit of the man whose passing they deeply regretted. Unknown to anyone, he had frequently taken the needy to his store and furnished them with food and necessities, Mr. Landsberg said. He moved all offices of members of the board be closed and as many as possible attend the funeral.

HOUSE SOLD BUT THINGS MISSING

Case Before Judge McIntosh Revives Old French Custom of Selling

When a person buys a house he has a right to expect washbasins, plumbing, electrical fixtures and other accessories to go with it.

This is what Judge McIntosh is considering to-day in the trial between Birtheville and Alfred Pedenault.

E. G. Fowkes, counsel for Mr. Birtheville, told about the deal for taking over a house in the Lake district. However, the new owners moved in they found not only the washbasins, electrical fixtures and other accessories missing, but also the water taps and the mirror in the bathroom. Mr. Birtheville's suit was to force the vendors to make good.

P. C. Elliott, counsel for the defence, explained that his clients being French went on the custom of their forefathers and their country, and never include such things when selling a house. Confirming that was the case, testifies was given by Angelic Demers Pedenault, Evelyn Pedenault and Arthur Pedenault.

The witnesses for Mr. Birtheville were J. T. Mulholland and Ralph Birtheville. Judge McIntosh is hearing more evidence on the case this afternoon.

WOMEN INDICT WALL STREET

Frauds Condoned If Committed By Prominent Brokers, U.S. Senators Told

Associated Press

Washington, June 24.—From two disappointed feminine investors, the United States Senate banking committee heard to-day a militant condemnation of the methods of Wall Street.

Telling the senators investigating the stock market that the New York Exchange "condones a fraud when committed by prominent brokers," Miss Grace Van Braam Roberts, middle-aged owner of an estate at Highland, N.Y., called for its strict control by the Federal Government.

Miss Ann Gushee, who works in a bank in Cheyenne, Wyoming, told of being sold Continental Shares stock by the Denver office of Oils and Company in 1929 at $3, although she said it never went higher than 78 on the New York Exchange.

LOST SAVINGS

When Senator Carey, Republican, Wyoming, asked her what it was worth to-day, she replied: "It has very small value, if any." She estimated her losses at several thousand dollars, virtually all of her savings.

Miss Roberts said she wanted to show the committee "the utter dishonesty of the New York Stock Exchange as dominated by Mr. Whitney." She referred to Richard Whitney, its president.

In vigorous terms, Miss Roberts asserted she had lost several hundred thousand dollars in Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Oil stock, and placed the blame on Hayden, Stone and Company, New York brokerage firm, which she said sold it to her in 1929. She bitterly condemned the Stock Exchange for failing to discipline the company.

Brilliant Batsman Puts On 180 Runs In Two Hour Stand

Touring Eleven Defeats Mainland "Rep" Team 338 to 117 in Third Exhibition Match; Australians Score Their Total for Loss of Only Six Wickets; All Visiting Players Bat Well; Over 2,000 in Attendance; Australians Now En Route to Toronto

Vancouver, June 24.—Following their surprise defeat by a mainland all-star team batting fifteen Wednesday, the touring Australian cricketers reversed matters in their final game here yesterday and led by the world-renowned batsman, Don Bradman, who scored 180 runs in two hours, ran up a total of 338 runs for eight wickets. All the fifteen mainland batsmen could do against the Aussie bowling was 117. Arthur Mailey captured nine local wickets for thirty-eight runs.

Brilliant sunshine all day and a crowd of over 2,000 people made things perfect for the game, and the spectators were well rewarded by the display of batting given by the visitors during the late afternoon.

Richardson and Nutt gave the visitors a great start off the bowling of Rivers and Peters, and although Lawrence took the ball from Peters with forty runs on the board, runs came fast and the fifty was hoisted after twenty minutes batting. Nutt hit Rivers over the boundary for six, but with the total at fifty-six Ivamy went on for Rivers and got Richardson out leg-before-wicket with his sixth ball. Only three more runs had been added before Bullen brilliantly caught Nutt at slip off Ivamy the outgoing batsman having made thirty-seven.

RAPID SCORING
Kippax and Bradman then collared the bowling and despite frequent changes scored at a rapid rate through brilliant driving, cutting, pulling to leg and placing. Bradman brought up the 100 with a straight drive to the boundary off Scott after the innings had been in progress fifty-five minutes and the Vancouver score was passed after exactly an hour's batting, but when Peters relieved Dobbie, Kippax jumped out to drive the new bowler and was easily stumped for thirty-three, the total then being 146.

McCabe and Bradman stayed together until the tea interval when the score was 155 for three wickets. Bradman started to hit out when play resumed and runs came rapidly, but with the total at 187 McCabe was brilliantly caught at slip by Bullen off Lawrence. Tolhurst was clean bowled first ball by Lawrence, but when Rife joined Bradman, the latter brought up the 200 with a great drive to the boundary after the Aussies had been batting an hour and forty minutes. Bradman reached his century after batting ninety minutes and then commenced to hit lustily. He scored twenty-one off one over from Reed, two sixes, two fours and a single, and then took fifteen from Peters's next over by the aid of three fours, a two and a single.

BRADMAN GOES OUT
Three hundred went up in two hours and ten minutes, but at 314 Bradman might a ball from Robinson into Peters's hands at mid-on, after driving for Toronto direct, where they will open their tour of eastern Canada and the United States on June 29. Complete scores follow:

LEAVE FOR TORONTO
Yesterday evening the Aussies left for Toronto direct, where they will open their tour of eastern Canada and the United States on June 29.

CONCENTRATING ON HALF
"Chuck" Cunningham is concentrating on the 800 metres, but has also entered for the 400 metres in which he will compete providing it follows the longer distance. McDonald was lined up for the 1,500 metres and will also compete in the mile relay.

In the girls' lists Sheila Swift is primed for the girls' junior sixty metres and the high jump as well as the baseball throw. She will also endeavor to run in the intermediate 100 metres if track regulations will permit her.

Muriel Mallory is expected to show up well in the sixty and 100 metres and the high jump. She may have to compete against Lillian Palmer and Mary Frisell, two outstanding young Vancouverites, who swept the boards in the intermediate Canadian championships two years ago, unless they are now over age.

Eleven Local Track Stars Seek Honors In Provincial Meet

Victoria Contingent to B.C. Championships and Provincial Olympic Trials at Vancouver Tomorrow Augmented by Addition of Al Pollock and Ray Kersey; Two Girls Making Trip

Augmented by the addition of two new runners, Al Pollock, University School, and Ray Kersey, former Victoria High School athlete, Victoria's senior men's contingent to the British Columbia track and field championships and provincial Olympic trials in Vancouver tomorrow totaled nine to-day. Two girls were scheduled to represent the Capital at the meet to-morrow morning before the men go on to the track. The local runners were leaving town this afternoon and to-night on the C.P.R. boats.

In splendid condition after weeks of hard drilling and workouts during the last few days, the team was reported to be all ready for the big event, which may give some of the members a chance to go to Hamilton for the Canadian trials in the near future.

READY FOR SPRINTS
Joe Addison, Bruce Humber and Lorne Campbell, three "x" boys, were listed for the 100 and 200 metre sprints, the events in which Pollock is also listed to compete. Kersey is expected to run in the 400 metres.

Reel Morgan and Lynn Patrick were billed to run with the other local sprinters in a quarter-mile relay, while Addison, Cunningham, McDonald and one other sprinter were slated to represent the city in the mile four-man event in which each runner will cover a quarter.

Judging from the showing Percy Williams made in the Vancouver police sports on Wednesday, the Victoria contingent will be lucky to place. The mainland Mercury is reported to be running in his 1928 Olympic form and will give the local boys a real test of their running ability.

Irrespective of their showings, the capital city boys cannot help but gain valuable experience from the competitions in which they have entered.

THOMPSON'S HOMER WINS

Jersey City Defeats Montreal in International Baseball After Timely Blow

Joe Cascarella suddenly has given promise of becoming one of the International League curvers since joining Jersey City club. He gave six walks and fanned six yesterday. The Skeets won from Montreal after two were out in the ninth when Fresno Thompson hit a homer with two on base.

In three other games yesterday, not another starting pitcher could go the route. Rochester and Baltimore put on the outstanding slugfest with the former winning 18 to 7 to make it three out of four for the series. Four pitchers were used.

Wildness of Newark's pitchers cost them a big lead against Buffalo and Bismarck rallied to win a 10-to-7 decision in the last four innings.

A high wind came to the aid of Toronto and Reading batters and blew many flies out of the fielders' reach. The result was a total of twenty-nine base hits and an 8-to-7 victory for the last-place Maple Leafs.

The Todds-Jokers game was marred by an accident to Joe Tillyer, Todds's first baseman in the ninth inning. Following a collision with Sam McKenzie during a close play at the initial sack, Tillyer was rushed to the hospital with a badly injured hip. Errors lost the Jokers any chance of winning the game.

Colwood's victory over the Moose was featured by a home run by Tommy Milligan in the seventh inning. Ross Bay played well to win their game from Camerons.

In the City League the Royal Arcanum defeated the Civic Staff 4 to 1, and the Y.M.I. triumphed over the Navy 14 to 12.

Government Host To English Party

Hon. J. Hinchliffe and Lieut.-Governor Johnson Welcome Visitors From Overseas

Tourists Say They Will Tell Their Friends at Home All About Canada and B.C.

British Columbia's official hand of friendship was extended across the banquet table yesterday evening to thirty-eight members of the inspection tour party from Great Britain now traveling in Canada under the auspices of British Columbia House in London under the personal guidance of W. A. McAdam, secretary to the B.C. Agent-General in London, England. The dinner was held in the Duke of Kent dining room at the Empress Hotel with the Governor acting as host.

In the absence of Premier Tolmie, Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, occupied the chair.

Mr. Hinchliffe voiced the regrets of Premier Tolmie at not being able to attend the gathering and extend the official welcome for the Province to the visitors from overseas. If the Premier were there, Mr. Hinchliffe said, he would be able to tell a great deal about this province that would be sure to interest the tourists from England. Mr. Hinchliffe told of the size of British Columbia, how England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, Holland, Belgium, France and the Isle of Man could easily be put into it. This fact, he was sure, would amaze most people in England.

When the visitors returned to their homes in England and Scotland, Mr. Hinchliffe hoped they would tell their friends all about Canada and British Columbia. He advised them to speak of the size of the place and the opportunities that are here and particularly to tell them that every man does not walk around with a revolver on his hip. He said that such a tour was bound to cement the bonds of friendship between Canada and England, and he hoped that the present party would not be the last to come to Canada under such auspices. He told the visitors to go home and tell their countrymen that out in British Columbia they had found a new Britain, with the same ideas and the same fine principles and traditions of the people at home.

WORLD BEFORE CANADA

"If you in Canada put health before wealth and use riches as a means, but not as an end, and continue to live simply, you have the whole of the world before you." This was the inspiring message delivered by Dr. J. H. Badcock in replying to Mr. Hinchliffe's toast to the guests. On behalf of the party he thanked the government for its wonderful hospitality and said the trip was one that all on the party would long remember. Although they had been royally feasted in all cities across Canada, they were well fed, but were by no means fed up.

At most of the towns where we stopped we were welcomed by the leading men, who seemed to have nothing else to do but make us at home and place every comfort at our convenience," he said. By such a tour the outlook of people was broadened. Dr. Badcock said, and many on the party were making valuable business, as well as friendly relations with many people in Canada. They were seeing for themselves, at first hand, the people with whom they had been doing business by correspondence. The tour so far had been an outstanding success, and the members of the party would certainly go home and tell their friends all about Canada.

"We have been entranced by the beauty of your country, by the verdant fields, the wonderful mountains and rivers, and the great natural resources, and when we go home we shall spread the story of Canada far and wide," the speaker said.

To Ralph Deakin, foreign and imperial editor of The London Times, fell the honor of proposing the toast to the province of British Columbia. "We shall all remember many towns in British Columbia as delightful, honey places, where we have made multitudes of friends," Mr. Deakin said in referring to the hospitality of the people who had entertained the party. He referred briefly to the forthcoming Imperial Conference at Ottawa, which he will attend as a representative of the great London journal. A great deal of courage is needed for the success of the conference, he said, and all participating in it must be prepared to give and take.

Lieut.-Governor Johnson extended a further welcome to the members of the party on behalf of the people of British Columbia. He hoped the visitors would have a most enjoyable stay in Canada and would return to their homes with good ideas of Canada, her people and her problems.

"A tour such as this," His Honor said, "is bound to do a great deal of good. I sincerely hope it is a forerunner of many others." He feared that people in England did not take full advantage of opportunities offered to visit Canada and he urged his listeners to return to England and advise their friends to come out here as soon as they could. While he was getting a great deal of pleasure out of welcoming them now as tourists, he hoped that he would have the still greater pleasure in the future of welcoming some members of the party to British Columbia as permanent residents.

Those invited to the dinner to meet the visitors from overseas were: His Honor the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Fordham, Johnson, Miss Helen Johnson, Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, representing Premier Tolmie, and Mrs. Hinchliffe. Mrs. Leonard Andrews, deputizing for her mother, Mrs. S. P. Tolmie, Hon. S. L. Howe and Mrs. Howe, Hon. J. W. Jones and Mrs. Jones, Hon. William Atkinson and Mrs. Atkinson, Hon. W. A. McKennie and Mrs. McKennie, Alderman W. T. Strath, representing Mayor Leeming, and Mrs. Strath, Hon. C. F. ance can be enjoyed. It was quite as good and quite as amusing as the presentation of the same play at the Globe Theatre in London three or four years ago. The cast last night was word-perfect throughout. The acting of the ladies and gentlemen alike, was very finished. The whole performance went with a wonderful swing and consistency and—what is not always the case with amateur performances—it was absolutely punctual in starting and finishing. It was a triumph of organization and skill. It was also extraordinarily amusing, and this seemed to be the opinion of the whole audience.

It is regrettable that all the seats were not occupied. In the stalls there were whole rows at the back still empty last night. It is doubly regrettable when it is remembered that two valuable and meritorious institutions, the Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals were, by that much, less benefited than they might have been from the takings for the evening.

It is very much to be hoped that the people of Victoria will give the future performance more complete support. While encouraging the generous and capable artists and enjoying at small cost a most delightful evening's entertainment, they will, at the same time, do a good turn to those deserving hospitals which do so much themselves for the people of their city.

TYPHUS AND FLEAS

To the Editor:—A recent report from the U.S.A. Health Service refers to the production of a new vaccine to fight against typhus, "dread pestilence that ravaged Europe as far back as the Middle Ages." The report says that the European typhus was far more deadly than the American variety, and was doubtless one of the "plagues" that killed so many of the population in bygone centuries.

The plagues of the Middle Ages and after, were the result of incredibly unsanitary and filthy conditions, and they have decreased or died out with the improvement of good living and good sanitation. Why can not the American variety do the same?

The incredibly nasty, superstitious method employed in producing this much lauded vaccine is to grind up fleas and inject them into helpless guinea pigs, but it has not yet been tried on humans. All this is most interesting because animals do not suffer from typhus. What they do suffer from, poor creatures, when used as experimental test tubes, is a form of sickness allied to blood poisoning, and which affects them in greater or less degree.

Having some curiosity on the subject I referred to the year 1922, and found that a Russian woman was said to have discovered a typhus germ (assuming no doubt that germs cause disease). This would probably be the prelude to the discovery of an appropriate serum or vaccine. In November, 1924, it appears that a Japanese announced a new vaccine treatment for typhus and measles which was, as usual, based on cruel animal experiments. What a hard blow to the vaunted germ-theory to find a vaccine that would do duty for two separate diseases, but inconsistencies are too frequent among "scientists" to cause the well-informed layman much perturbation!

In December, 1931, another serum was announced by the Society of American Bacteriologists, but it had not then been tried on human beings. In What Your Pipe Needs!

OGDEN'S CUT PLUG

If you "roll your own," use Ogden's fine cut cigarette tobacco.

February, 1932, I learned that the vivisectionists were much disturbed over the flea shortage and that a German institute had spent $3,000 in bringing a supply from Southeast Europe, because it was hard to get them in Western Europe. This, at least, is to the credit of western sanitation!

Many inconceivably cruel and useless experiments are conducted on laboratory animals, but it nations decide to go in for extreme cleanliness the fleas may become extinct. This will be a blow to the vivisectional experiment. The general public evidently has not the slightest idea of the indescribably nasty concoctions that have been and still are produced for the so-called cure of disease, and based on far-fetched and untenable theories.

If the former serums and vaccines discovered for the relief of typhus had been of any practical use, there surely would be no need for further investigation along the lines of the recent research heralded from the United States Public Health Service. I have no objection to vivisection making these horrid experiments upon themselves, but do most strenuously and righteously denounce their being made on helpless animals or helpless and ignorant human beings. Vaccine and serum production, so profitable for the producers and so often disastrous for the consumers, is based upon the unproved theory that germs cause disease. Attend, please, to the words of Dr. Michael Shipsey in The Medical Times, March, 1932:

"We now laugh at the Babylonians of 3,000 odd years ago, who looked upon 'spirits' as the cause of illness. Without a doubt the inhabitants of 1,000 years hence will also laugh at us for thinking germs to be the cause of disease."

Are you ever

"TALKED INTO BUYING" things you DON'T want?

OVER the counter, you know, extravagant claims are so easily made. But remember this—it takes a lot more than a clerk's promise to put quality into any product! Then why should you or any other woman ever listen to a clerk who offers you something "just as good" as the thing you ask for? Surely your knowledge of the dependability of widely-used products is worth more to you than all the claims any clerk can make for products of which you know absolutely nothing! Whenever you find any store that continually urges you to buy unfamiliar products instead of the reliable brands you ask for, look out! All too often, that merchant reaps an extra profit, or his clerks a commission, by switching you to the unknown, often inferior merchandise. Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend. But if you are urged to buy something "just as good" as what you ask for, be firm! Insist on products you know by experience, by their brand-names, or by the reputations of their makers. You will often read about such products in the advertising columns of this newspaper. Think of this whenever you shop. Then you will always get your money's worth in both merchandise and satisfaction.

Winnipeg Wheat Pit Goes Slightly Lower

Winnipeg, June 24.—Fairly general rains over the Canada's prairie wheat belt and weakness displayed by stock markets pressed wheat prices to slightly lower levels to-day. Higher prices at Liverpool were ignored as the

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, June 24.—The wheat market continued dull and almost a stagnant affair. The chief feature was again the light feeling, there being absolutely no pressure on the market. At the same time there was no export business outside of a few scattered orders worked by sea and on outside interest was shown in the market. The Chicago market appeared to be in the same condition. Price declined about half cent during first part of the day. The market apparently showing of its own weight and lack of support around the bid prices. A little support was offered by locals and the market reacted fractionally. There was also a little buying of July at 53½ to 54½, and December at 54½ to 55½. The big interest that has been supporting the market on the weak spots.

There was practically nothing doing in the cash market the demand being very poor. Spreads were all about unchanged; mills report flour business as very quiet both for export and domestic. There was some further talk of rust in the Dakotas but these reports appear to be mostly emanating in Chicago as they are denied by Minneapolis and a report from that city that black rust had been found in only one spot while there was very little trace of rust so far. This menace depends on the weather the next three or four weeks. Grasshoppers reports continue plentiful and they are a serious menace in some districts but so far they have not done very much damage to wheat, being mainly confined to the grass or the late corn crops. Australian shipments this week 1,843,000 bushels, while Argentine shipped only 1,996,000 bushels. Small world shipments are expected this week which accounts for the firmness in Liverpool. THERE IS SOLID ROCK UNDER CANADA'S FEET

INSTEAD of straining our eyes looking "around the corner" for that phantom which men call "Prosperity," and never overtake, let us look at some facts:—

Our natural resources are still beyond any accurate estimate; our national wealth over $30,000,000,000.

Our banks are solvent.

Their debits are 11 per cent. more to-day than they were ten years ago.

Their savings deposits more than 22 per cent.

Twice as much life insurance is in force.

While the optimists were peeking around that "corner" and the minor prophets whispering blue ruin, Canadian corporations in 1931 paid out in dividends $226,351,000, an increase of $32,500,000 over the average for six years, and $50,000,000 better than any year in Canadian history prior to 1929.

Why should Canadians stop working to shake apart with Fear? All the "terrible things" that were to happen are fading out of focus.

Outsiders knocked down our dollar but our bills to the world have been paid, our taxes met, our hungry fed, and our helpless sheltered.

Masses are always blinded by the immediate view, but our Canadian people are coming to see that a riot of economy is just as foolish and just as dangerous as a riot of extravagant spending.

Sane men of every class must realize the necessity of keeping a constant unrelenting contact with this market that is slowly and surely regaining confidence in itself.

There is no contacting medium so close to the Canadian consumer as his daily newspaper.

HOME GARDENS TO BE JUDGED

Victoria Horticultural Society Will Again Conduct Popular Competition

The Victoria Horticultural Society is again conducting its home garden competition, which has proved so popular during the last few years. The competition is so arranged that it will be for practically any home garden. The only restriction in connection with this competition is that the gardens must be within the two and a half mile circle.

The competition is not confined to members. The competition is divided into three classes: Class A for gardens of 7,200 superficial feet and over; class B for gardens less than the above area, and class C for gardens of any size, where paid help is occasionally employed.

In addition to the much coveted challenge cup, substantial cash prizes are awarded. The judging of the gardens will be undertaken about the third week in July, permitting competitors to make exhibits at the society's annual show the last week of the same month. All competitors who obtain 75 per cent of total points will receive awards of merit. Full particulars appear on the cover of the prize list of the summer show and can be obtained at most floral stores or from the secretary, P. E. Boulter, 538 Obed Avenue, phone E 8490.

MANY PICNICS FOR HOLIDAY

Public Grounds Near City Are Booked For July 1; Mount Douglas Popular

Popularity of Mount Douglas Park as a site for picnic outings is greater than ever this year and is in no small measure due to improvements there which have enlarged the sports grounds, the application record indicates.

The park has been booked for large picnics for practically every week-end from June 1 to July 6 and organizations contemplating summer outings have shown decided favoritism for the site.

COMPLETE "Y" CAMP PLANS

Association Now Receiving Registrations For Sooke Tent Colony

With the out-of-doors beckoning to the young people of Victoria, and school boys looking forward to their summer camps, the local Y.M.C.A. has virtually completed arrangements for its annual tent colony at Sooke Harbor, near the mouth of the Sooke River. The camp will open on July 1, and continue until July 18.

Under the expert management of Viv Shoemaker, boys' work secretary of the association, the colony will be administered in much the same way as in previous years, although the programme has been enlarged to include new activities this season.

The boys live in large tents, each having a board floor, and each tent group is in the charge of a leader.

GOOD PROGRAMME
From the morning dip to the closing campfire there is something of interest for every boy each day. The programme consists of games, hikes, swimming, boating, fishing and instruction in swimming and life saving, first aid, Indian lore, and model aircraft building. The day's closing campfire is a big feature, with the camp newspaper, singings, stories and stunts.

For twenty years the Victoria Y.M.C.A. has been conducting summer camps, and hundreds of boys cherish happy memories of those days. Everything possible is done to look after the health and safety of the boys, all activities are carefully supervised, boating and swimming are allowed only during scheduled periods. The food is wholesome and is prepared by an experienced lady cook. Registrations for the camp must be in the hands of Mr. Shoemaker by June 27.

DOMINION IN FIRST PLACE

In Better General Condition Than Any Other Country, Says Commissioner

Canada is probably in a better general condition at this time than any other country. The resistance of Canadian industry to the forces of depression and the hardy character of the Canadian people have been cited as among the principal reasons. F. W. Field, senior trade commissioner in Canada and Newfoundland, says in the course of a review of the current situation in Canada, a copy of which has been received by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"The country's industrial and financial fabric received considerable strength during the good years from 1925 to 1928 and Canada still has vast natural wealth," Mr. Field states. "The country has strong recuperative power. If the depression continues much longer, he says, then Canada may find its common round and daily task more difficult than in the past. As soon as world conditions improve the Dominion is likely to be one of the first countries to recover. Indeed, there is ground for the opinion held by many that this country is about to enter another era of active development."

He was dug out of the wreck of his car and carried to the nearest doctor's office.

"I can't do anything for this man," said the doctor. "I'm a veterinary surgeon."

"You're the right man," said the amateur motorist. "I was an ass to think I could run that machine."

Teeth Extracted From Debtor

Associated Press
New York, June 24.—A few weeks ago Joe Bernstein borrowed $50 from Daniel and William Baratz. He failed to pay it back. Yesterday evening the Baratz boys called at his home, he told police, and escorted him to a dentist's office. Bernstein was elated. He thought they had a job for him.

A few minutes later, his protests having been overruled, Joe was toothless. Adding that he had been placed in a car and all his clothes removed except his trousers, Bernstein said he regarded the entire procedure as uncalled for.

The Baratz brothers were arrested.

TOKIO WELCOMES SOLDIERS HOME

Associated Press
Tokio, June 24.—Tokio turned out to-day to welcome home five of Japan's heroes from the "war" in Manchuria and Shanghai.

A crowd of about 50,000 people gathered at the railway station to welcome Vice-Admiral Nomura, Rear-Admiral Shiozawa and Lieut.-General Uyeda from Shanghai and Gen. Muro and Gen. Kamura from Manchuria.

Admiral Nomura and Gen. Uyeda both bore the marks of their narrow escape from death by a bomb at Shanghai, April 29. Admiral Nomura wore a black patch over the eye he lost and Gen. Uyeda's foot was still bandaged.
